

Weekend Traffic Accidents Claim 21 Lives in State

5 Killed in Green County,
4 in Crash Near Berlin

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first weekend of the official summer season brought generally fine weather to Wisconsin, luring thousands of motorists out upon the state's highways.

It also brought death to 21 persons, only one short of the all time record for non-holiday weekends. In 1958, 22 persons were killed on the weekend of Aug. 13-15. The record traffic toll for any weekend was in 1952, when 27 persons were killed during a three-day Labor Day weekend.

The victims included five members of a family killed in a car-train collision near Albany, in Green County. Four persons were killed Friday night in a collision near Berlin, in Green Lake County.

The fatalities, along with two others resulting from accidents taking place before the weekend, raised the state's 1961 traffic toll to 379, compared with 341 on this day one year ago.

Strike Freight Train

John W. Smith, a 28-year-old portable feed mill operator of rural Evansville, was taking his family home Saturday after a visit to his wife's parents near Albany. The group had driven to the Albany outskirts on Highway 50 when it collided at a crossing with a Milwaukee Road freight train. The car was slammed aside and became wedged between a cement wall and the tracks.

The collision killed Smith, his wife, Marilyn, also 28, and their two girls, Tammy Marie, 3, and Becky Lynn, 1. A son, Roger, 8, died a few hours later at St. Clare Hospital in Monroe.

Randy Smith, 7, the only member of the family to survive, suffered a broken leg and head bruises but hospital attendants later described him in good condition.

Crash Near Berlin

Friday night's collision near Berlin killed Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kurtzbein, both 53, and their grandson, Rodney Fueschner, 12, all of rural Markesan and occupants of one car; and John Isely, 36, of Fond du Lac.

Dennis H. Jurgens, 21, of Wauwatosa was killed Sunday when his car missed a curve on Waukesha County trunk highway CCC one mile east of Delafield.

Marge Gannon, 37, of Madison, died early Sunday of injuries suf-

Rebels Yield In Venezuela

Surrender After
Air Force Threat

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Troops in Barcelona revolted to-day against President Romulo Betancourt but a broadcast later in the day from the city said the insurgents had surrendered to loyal forces.

The rebels had seized the radio station and announced they had captured the governor of Anzoategui state, Gen. Rafael Solorzano.

Announcing that the uprising had collapsed, Radio Tropical of Barcelona said all rebel leaders had been captured.

The radio report said the rebels gave up after air force Canberra jets made pass over the Barcelona army barracks.

Calls For Surrender
Loyal troops and navy men were dispatched to Barcelona, Anzoategui's capital and commercial center near the Caribbean coast, to quell the uprising.

A related attempt at rebellion at LaGuaira, the seaport for Caracas, was reported quickly crushed.

Betancourt called on the garrison of Barcelona, reported to number 350 officers and men, to surrender or face an attack by loyal forces from land, sea and air.

The government said the rebellion was localized at Barcelona and that the Betancourt regime had the backing of all other members of the armed forces.

Board Will Seek Facts In Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today invoked the Taft-Hartley act in an effort to halt the strike of maritime unions.

In an executive order, the President said the strike will, if permitted to continue, imperil the national health and safety.

At the same time, Kennedy set up a three-member emergency board to consider facts and circumstances of the dispute between sea-going unions and ship operators.

Kennedy set a deadline of Friday for the board to make its report.

The board, under Taft-Hartley law, will make no recommendations, but will merely report on the issues of the dispute.

Kennedy, unless the strike is settled in the meantime, presumably will then seek an injunction to halt the strike for an 80-day cooling off period.

The first step of the injunctive machinery is to ask for a temporary restraining order. Under the law, the federal judge who gets the application must grant the temporary restraining order.

Kennedy named David L. Cole as chairman of the emergency board. Cole is former head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Other members are Samuel I. Roseman of New York and Prof. James J. Healy of the Harvard Business School.

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg told reporters the board is expected to act very promptly. Goldberg had given the President a report on a weekend survey of the strike's impact.

reported by Yemeni sources to have stepped down in favor of his reform-minded son.

Informants said Crown Prince Mohammed Al-Badr, about 35, has taken over the government and the 70-year-old king has gone into retirement in a suburban residential palace outside the capital of Ta'izz.

There was no official confirmation of the reports, but the tough old Imam has been in failing health aggravated by four wounds he got in an assassination attempt last March.

Prince Seif El Islam Al-Hassan, 56, brother of the king and Yemen's delegate to the United Nations, reportedly was called home to lend support to Al-Badr, who was named premier and interior minister.

An aide of Al-Hassan in New York confirmed the prince went back to Yemen May 31 for a month's home leave and consultations, but said he had not heard of any change in the government.

Diefenbaker told newsmen after a 90-minute conference with Ikeda that Japan wants to step up purchases of Canadian iron ore, copper and other minerals to support a new industrial expansion program.

Sees Education Bill's Passage

Kennedy Tells Teachers He Hopes
To Sign Measure

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The cautious hope that Congress will pass a program of federal aid to education hung over the 99th annual convention of the National Education Association today.

Many of an estimated 10,000 delegates and observers were buoyed in spirit by a guardedly optimistic message Sunday night from President Kennedy, who said he hoped to sign such a bill before the end of the summer.

But their optimism was tempered by the remembrance of many past disappointments.

"The President told the convention: 'The most crucial period for this legislation is still ahead.'"

"But," he said, "it is a sound measure. It is a just measure. It is an urgently needed measure—and I have every reason to believe that... I will sign into law before the summer is out this nation's first federal aid to education program."

George Vanderbilt III
Jumped to His Death,
Officials Believe

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Coroner's deputies yesterday believed the death of George Vanderbilt III to be suicide, but the reason for his plunge from a 10th floor hotel suite remained a mystery.

Vanderbilt, 47, who inherited $40 million, was found dead Saturday night by a Mark Hopkins bellboy after his bride of three months missed him in their rooms.

"The circumstances indicate suicide, but he left no notes and there were no witnesses," Deputy Coroner Karl C. Lytle said. Lytle didn't rule out the possibility of an accident.

Mrs. Louise Vanderbilt said her husband had called to her and she had gone into the suite's sitting room, found him gone and the window open. She told police she was afraid to look down and called the hotel desk.

The couple had driven to San Francisco from their northern California ranch near Mt. Shasta for a Saturday night at the hotel.

The coroner's office said investigation showed Vanderbilt died of multiple injuries suffered in the 150-foot fall.

HONOLULU (AP)—Governors of both political parties pledged strong support today to President Kennedy in his dealing with the Soviets on Berlin and other crisis areas.

But Kennedy's domestic policies came in for sharp criticism from some Republicans and a Democrat who was one of his early supporters for the 1960 presidential nomination, Gov. John Patterson of Alabama.

Would Halt Criticism

Patterson kicked up some excitement on the outskirts of the 53rd annual Governors' Conference by blasting what he called the "childish" handling of the "Freedom Riders" bus controversy by the President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy.

Peace Corps Unit Will Go to Ghana

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP)—R. Sargent Shriver, director of the Peace Corps, disclosed today that he is sending a unit to Ghana.

The group going to the African nation will train at the University of California's Berkeley campus next fall.

Shriver made the disclosure to 81 volunteers who began training today at Rutgers University for a two-year stay at Columbia, South America.

Shriver said that during a recent trip to Ghana, the nation's president, Kwame Nkrumah, invited the Peace Corps to send the volunteers. They will be used as school teachers in the Ghana school system.

Police Hunt Brunette in Boy's Death

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Police pushed a round-the-clock search today for a slender, raincoat-clad brunette who they believe drowned a 3-year-old boy by dropping him off a bridge after binding his hands and feet with her stockings.

The body of blonde, blue-eyed Andrew Ashley was found near the shore of an artificial lake in 300-acre Delaware Park. The boy apparently had been dead since Friday afternoon, when he was reported missing.

A neighbor said he last saw Andrew walking Friday with a tall, dark-haired woman. Police believe she was the same woman who left two other youngsters bound and gagged next to railroad tracks recently. Both were found unharmed.

"We're dealing with a woman maniac," said Mayor Frank Sedita.

Britain Rejects Iraq's Claim to Kuwait, Oil Rich Neighbor State

LONDON (AP)—Britain today jointly owned by the British Petroleum Co. and the American Karim Kassam's claim that the Gulf Oil Corp. Output in 1959 topped 68 million tons of crude oil to Iraq.

This dispatch said crowds assembled in front of the sheik's palace in a protest demonstration against Iraq's annexation move.

Kassam's claim seemed to signal a political — rather than military — campaign to take over the territory. The Iraqi soldier-leader announced yesterday he would send notes to all governments with which the Baghdad authorities have relations setting forth his case.

Iraq put up a belligerent front. A dispatch from Baghdad, the capital, said Iraq's army chief of

Seek to Repair Split In Labor Movement

AFL-CIO President Under Attack From Unions, Congress Leader; Asked to Retire From His Post

UNITY HOUSE, Pa., (AP) — zero as a labor leader — a charge AFL-CIO leaders meet today in that Meany retorted was not an effort to heal internal frictions that threaten to split the merger labor movement.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, is under attack from all sides on grounds he has wasted time in dealing with feuds among rival unions.

This has led to a suggestion from House Labor Committee Chairman Adam Clayton Powell, D.N.Y., that Meany step aside. The AFL-CIO is racked with rival claims among unions of jurisdictional representation rights.

Intricate Claims
Meany has succeeded over the years in balancing these intricate inter-union claims — except that now the unions are more intense, than ever in pushing their demands. The shortage of jobs has accentuated this rivalry.

Powell said last week that Meany should quit or beef up his union leadership to deal with alleged racial discrimination in unions and provide a stronger voice for labor in Congress.

Powell said that Meany was a

Ike and Nixon Meet Tonight In Pennsylvania

GOP Leaders Head $100-a-Plate Fund Raising Dinner

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon meet tonight for the first time since leaving office to help Pennsylvania Republicans kick off a campaign to regain the governorship and a Senate seat.

While the $100-a-plate fund-raising buffet dinner is billed as a testimonial to the two men, it will give Nixon a chance to confer with Eisenhower on Republican politics and world problems.

Nixon is expected to deliver a 30-minute speech, touching on party organization and rebuilding GOP strength in the big cities.

Would Ike Run?
Eisenhower is scheduled to make only brief remarks. But his appearance will give George I. Bloom, Pennsylvania state Republican chairman, a chance to find out for certain whether, as speculation has it, Eisenhower might be interested in running next year for the Senate seat now held by Democrat Joseph S. Clark.

David L. Lawrence, also a Democrat, now holds the governorship. His term expires next year and he cannot seek re-election under Pennsylvania law.

Eisenhower was asked about running for senator last week. He took the question in a light vein, pointing out he was 70 years old. Bloom said he doubted Eisenhower would run for public office but that he wanted to make certain. The occasion also will give Pennsylvania GOP leaders a chance to inquire about Nixon's future political plans and his thoughts on running for governor of California next year.

Virginia Crash Kills 6 Persons

Six Others Injured In 2-Car Collision Near Cumberland

CUMBERLAND, Va. (AP) — Six persons were killed and at least six others injured Sunday night in a two-car collision two miles west of this central Virginia town on U.S. 460.

Only one of the dead was immediately identified. She is June Goff Dawson, 42, of route 1, Rustburg, Va.

State police said the head-on collision occurred shortly before 10 p.m. Three persons died at the scene of the wreck and the other three a short while later.

Five of the dead and some of the injured were taken to the Southside Community Hospital in nearby Farmville. The Dawson woman was one of several injured being taken to Medical College of Virginia Hospital in Richmond, about 45 miles east of the collision scene.

The wreck involved a car and a station wagon, police said, and occurred on a straight stretch of highway. One of the victims was pinned in the wreckage for two hours.

This was Virginia's second major multiple fatality highway crash in two successive weekends. Eight persons died in a head-on collision last Sunday on U.S. 460 a few miles from the historic Civil War shrine of Appomattox.

'Ma' Ferguson, Texas Political Figure, Dies

Only Woman Ever Elected Twice as Governor of Any State in America

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson, the only woman ever elected twice as governor of any state, died yesterday at 86 after a heart attack.

During her terms that started in 1924 and 1932, she was one of the most controversial figures in Texas politics.

Her husband, James E. (Farmer Jim) Ferguson, served two terms as governor before her and was impeached in 1917 for fiscal irregularities. Mrs. Ferguson ran on a platform of vindicating the Ferguson name and won handily. Both were Democrats.

Mrs. Ferguson was first elected governor on the same day, Nov. 4, 1924, that Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross was elected gover-

'Scout' Rocket Will Make Study Of Space Objects

WASHINGTON (AP) — The civilian space agency soon will launch a satellite designed to study small particles in outer space and the danger they might damage space vehicles.

The launching, powered by a 72-foot, 36,000-pound, four-stage Scout rocket, will take place at Wallops Island, Va.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said yesterday another major phase of the fifth Scout rocket shoot is to give scientists another chance to study the rocket's performance.

The Scout already has been used in two ballistic flights and two orbital efforts. The new Scout shoot is planned to send back information about space particles known as Micrometeoroids between 240 and 620 miles above the earth.

Doctors May be Able To Diagnose Diseases Before Illness Strikes

Blood Tests Would Give Tip That Organs Were Heading for Trouble

BY ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Now there are prospects of diagnosing diseases long before you ever know you are sick, a physician said today.

Blood tests for certain tell-tale chemicals would provide the tip-off that a heart, kidney, liver or other organ was heading into trouble, and perhaps even tell why.

Then doctors could start earlier treatments, to prevent or minimize damage.

This research promise was outlined by Dr. Felix Wroblewski of New York City at the opening scientific session of the 110th annual meeting of the American Medical Association.

Medical Research

This year the AMA convention is introducing a new accent on the frontiers of medical research, on the new ideas and trends and discoveries that create tomorrow's medicine. Part of the idea is to shorten the time lag between laboratory discovery and practical benefit for patients.

Wroblewski's research is an example.

He finds that some enzymes—vital agents sparking chemical processes in the body—are composed of closely related substances rather than being single entities.

One such enzyme, lactic dehydrogenase of LDH, is composed of five elements or isoenzymes.

The interesting thing, he said, is that the proportion of these five elements vary in different healthy body organs or tissues.

Distinctive Patterns

"Within certain limits, each person's normal patterns are as distinctive as his fingerprints," he explained.

Periodic blood tests could detect early, subtle changes in organs before there were any usual physical signs or distress, said Wroblewski, assistant professor of clinical medicine at Cornell University Medical School.

He finds different patterns of the five isoenzymes in the heart, the thyroid and adrenal glands, lungs, liver, pancreas, spleen, kidney, and blood plasma.

A heart attack should be suspected, he said, when there is an increase in isoenzymes numbers four and five in the blood, since they are the components of the LDH enzyme in heart tissue.

'SS Hope' Provides Help, Training for the World

Hospital Ship Now in Indonesia—Floating Good-Will Ambassador

BY ROBERT A. PETERSON
"Yes, I think I know how to do this operation now," the Indonesian surgeon smiled and removed his gauze mask. As the patient was wheeled out of the operating room aboard the SS Hope, the American and Indonesian doctors removed their rubber gloves and prepared for a discussion of the case.

The Indonesian surgeon's voice was full of confidence and enthusiasm as each step of the operation was reviewed. For the American surgeon the delicate neck dissection and removal of cancer from the jaw was a difficult but not rare operation. For his Indonesian counterpart who knew the textbook operation by heart but needed to see an operation of this type performed before he could undertake the delicate work himself, it meant a great deal.

Since its arrival in Indonesia Oct. 10, 1960, the SS Hope has received a steady flow of Indonesian medical students, doctors, nurses, technicians and professors, all eager to discuss their medical work and learn more of current American techniques. The reception by the Indonesian people Francisco late in September, its philosophy had been established: that treating Indonesian medical problems with full-scale western equipment is fruitless. The Hope staff has imposed upon itself the same limitations of equipment and sanitary facilities that Indonesian healers experience.

One nurse assigned to the medical team at the 250 bed central hospital in Den Pasar reported:

Used Kerosene Stove

"We had brand new sterilizers on the ship, but we left them there and used the small kerosene stove in one corner of the laboratory at the Central Hospital. It took an hour to get the wick hot enough to heat the water, another hour and a half to bring the water to a boil, and then 30 minutes to sterilize the instruments. After three days of this, the Indonesian staff appeared with a brand new German sterilizer that had arrived in Djakarta several months before, but had been damaged in shipment. We were able to repair it and now they're using it constantly."

Frequently Hope personnel has found modern unused gift equipment in hospitals which arrived either damaged or without adequate instructions for assembling and use. One of the Hope's crew members regularly takes his toolbox along on days off the ship "to see if anything needs fixing."

Another nurse added: "We are learning how to make do with one needle and two syringes for an entire hospital. I think we taught the maximum techniques possible under those conditions."

Another nurse found one thermometer in a 200-patient clinic, and two stethoscopes for a whole hospital.

A Hope nurse from New Jersey reported: "The biggest challenge was to teach good scrubbing techniques when there was no water in the clinic."

What's Within Reach

Another volunteered: "I'm going to show them how to replace a soiled lower sheet with the top sheet. If my hospital at home ever found out they'd probably discharge me, but I know this is within their reach and nothing else is."

A New Hampshire nurse is investigating the possibilities of using clean banana leaves to cover the bare mattresses in a children's ward.

Looking Each Other over, Robert Peterson, former Lawrence College publicity department employee, and an Indonesian baby meet. Peterson is the public relations officer aboard the SS Hope, first of the Great White Fleet the U. S. is sending to help other nations.

Allies May Face War Over Berlin

Question How Far U. S. Will Go in Avoiding Showdown With Soviets

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The achieving problem of West Berlin can be stated now in two basic questions even though discussion about it will get deafening in the months ahead.

1. Will the West, particularly the United States, make concessions to Premier Khrushchev to avoid a showdown on his demands that West Berlin be turned into a so-called free city 110 miles inside Communist East Germany?

2. If the answer is no, what will the West do if the Russians then force a showdown by trying to shut the city off from the West through force or a strict blockade against supplies for the 2.5 million people in West Berlin?

The demands Khrushchev is making now on Berlin are similar to those he made in 1958. Then he gave the West six months for a settlement. Later he backed off and calmed down. Now once again he has set a six-month deadline.

Purpose Seems Plain
This time there's no reason to think he doesn't mean it.

His purpose seems plain enough: to weaken the confidence of the neutrals in the West's determination to stand firm against a Communist push.

At this moment the West has strong links with West Berlin. If those links are badly broken, it seems inevitable that eventually West Berlin, now a Western island in a Communist sea, will be completely lost.

At first—because the deadline is still months away—President Kennedy's administration probably will utter a firm no against any concessions that would look like a Western defeat although some concessions might seem possible.

Willing to Face War
As the months roll on—particularly as Democrats and Republicans have time to sound off—the Kennedy administration will learn more about the mood of the American people: whether they are willing to face war over Berlin.

This undoubtedly will have effect on administration thinking. Meanwhile, the allies in Europe, who would be closer to the scene of war, will have time to see how sturdy their own willingness is to face ruin for Berlin.

But suppose the West stands firm, which might mean war? What kind of war would it be—a limited, groundlike kind of war without resort to nuclear missiles or weapons?

A limited ground war seems unlikely. Khrushchev started his first buildup toward a West Berlin crisis with demands he made on Thanksgiving Day in 1958.

President Eisenhower, at every news conference he held for months afterward, was belted with questions about Berlin. On March 11, 1959, he laid out the American position on fighting for Berlin.

No Ground War
Pointing out that the 175 Russian divisions far outnumbered any forces the United States could send into Europe to defend Berlin, Eisenhower said, "we are certainly not going to fight a ground war in Europe. What good would it do to send a few thousand or indeed even a few divisions of troops to Europe?"

Then, although deploring nuclear war as a self-defeating thing because of its enormous destruction, he added: "Therefore, we have got to stand right ready and say 'we will do what is necessary to protect ourselves but we are never going to back up on our rights and our responsibilities.'"

This was a clear implication the United States would use nuclear weapons if necessary to protect what it considers Western rights in Berlin.

At this moment, at least, this could be interpreted as also the position of the Kennedy administration. Last Friday Kennedy hastily assembled his top advisers for a White House conference and reviewed Soviet threats to Berlin.

Afterward Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, one of those at the meeting, was asked at a news conference about increasing American defense in Berlin where the United States, Britain and France have a token force of troops.

He said there are "no plans at this time to increase the garrison" or add to its weapons. "Our military department," he said, "is sufficiently strong to accomplish its purpose."

This sounded like Eisenhower at a similar period in the Berlin crisis two years ago.

Professor Defines Objective of Urban Planning

Disorderly, often headlong, urbanization is an important aspect "of the almost frightening population increase now underway throughout the world," Coleman Woodbury, University of Wisconsin political science professor, told a meeting of the World Health Organization (WHO) at Geneva, Switzerland, last week.

Presenting a paper on town planning to the WHO Expert Committee on the Public Health Aspects of Housing, Prof. Woodbury defined urban planning and discussed its major potential contributions to public health.

The principal objectives in urban planning, he maintained, should be livability, efficiency in the provision of public services, amenity, flexibility in the urban structure, optimum use of resources, and public participation in the planning process.

Prof. Woodbury is one of eight members of the WHO committee, representing seven countries including the USSR, meeting June 19-26.

Bill Seeks Complete Identification of Campaign Contributors

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Complete identification of financial contributors to candidates for public office, their committees, and political parties is required under a new Wisconsin law.

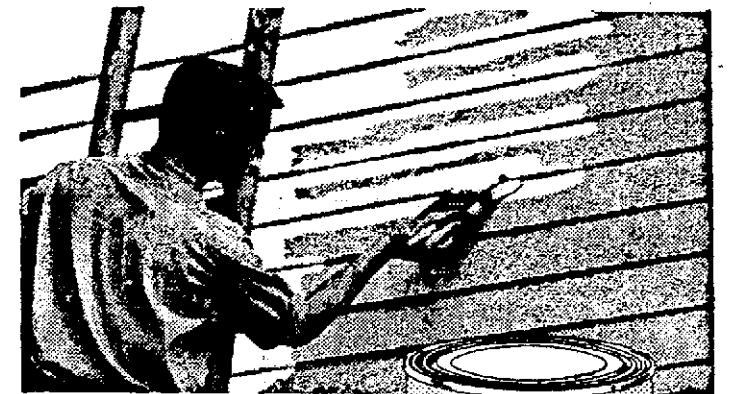

Robert Dean of Marathon and Shawano counties, specifically requires reports filed under the state election laws to contain the full and complete name of each contributor, and his residence address. The reporting system has often been criticized because, in the absence of explicit requirements, many political expense reports failed to provide full names and omitted addresses of contributors. The GOP Tax Proposal

The Republican majority in the legislature is offering the people of Wisconsin a tax revision program which proposes to shift a portion of the burden from real estate and personal property taxes to a sales tax.

The bill calls for a 3 per cent general sales tax to take effect Oct. 1. The sales tax would apply to practically all retail sales and to many services. However, gasoline sales and real estate sales, as well as most professional services, will be exempt from the tax.

It is estimated that the 3 per cent levy would bring in approximately $197 million in a full year of operation. About $60 million of this income would be used to reduce the levy on real estate and approximately $60 million would be used to eventually wipe out the personal property tax in the state. This would leave approximately $77 million to balance the state budget.

While the sales tax section offers few exemptions, its impact would be softened considerably by the refund of $9 annually to every person in the state. For those owing income tax it would be deducted from that bill. Those who do not owe income tax may file a claim and receive the $9 in cash. This provision applies to every member of a family including the children. The real estate tax relief would come through the distribution of sales tax revenue to the various communities by the state. If a community levied 1 per cent of the real estate taxes in Wisconsin it would get 1 per cent of the $60 million set aside for real estate tax relief. The local city officials would compute the tax credit to be given to each taxpayer in the community.

The bill proposes to reduce personal property taxes, by 25 per cent in 1962 and to eliminate the tax completely in 1963. The elimination will cost approximately $60 million. This money will be distributed to the various local governments on the basis of their local personal property tax assessments. The plan is for the assessors to continue to assess the personal property and report to the state the basis for the distribution of sales tax revenue to replace the personal property tax collections. No change is proposed in the income tax immediately. However, it is proposed to reduce the present 20 per cent income surtax to 10 per cent in 1963.

It appears the leaders of the legislature have made a genuine attempt to bring in a bill to revise Wisconsin's tax system. This matter has been under consideration for several years and during the past year has been intensely debated. There is nothing in the bill that has not been discussed before. It varies from the proposal by Gov. Nelson. The governor had intended to increase the income tax and avoid the levy of a sales tax. However, the bill does contain many of the recommendations of the so-called Blue Ribbon Committee and is in agreement with the governor on some details, particularly as to the withholding feature of the income tax.

The bill will be up for hearing in Madison Thursday. Those interested will have an opportunity to be heard. The outcome of the hearing probably will determine whether there is to be tax revision in Wisconsin this year.

Another Thought on Neenah School District Possibilities

Editor, Post-Crescent:

To People of Neenah and Outlying Districts:

I read with interest Mr. Paul Hanson's views on the unified system regarding the impending school reorganization. He has sincerely tried to be open minded regarding what he feels is best for the outlying districts as well as Neenah itself.

I feel that the newly passed law, intended to raise the standard of education for most of the state was not needed in our area.

It has been my pleasure for the past 17 years, to have been living in the Lakeview School District, Town of Neenah. We, in the outlying districts, enjoy the most functional and democratic means of school operation in existence, the common school system. Under this system the school board is elected from the district at large and the school budget is reviewed and acted upon by the people, at the annual school board meeting in July. The advantages of this system cannot be exceeded. Perhaps the most desirable part of this is the individual interest shown, for the most part, by each parent and taxpayer. There is little of the "let John do it" attitude out here. As with most ideal situations, progress reared its head and changes, usually for the worst, occur.

I am presently working with a committee investigating the pros and cons of a high school district outside the city. Consequently I have read and studied all methods to the best of my ability from the available materials. The unified plan seems, at first glance, to be the most beneficial to all concerned. However, when you get out the fine tooth comb you hit the inevitable snag. The snag here, as I see it, was the phrase "it is desirable for the school board to hold a public hearing annually" — I assumed from this that a hearing on the budget is not mandatory. It is conceivable then that if the group affected were too large or the building available for meetings small or almost any "plausible" excuse were to be found, the annual hearing on budget could be discontinued.

The rebuttal to this will be that school board members are reliable men and women with

Looking Backward

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for July 6, 1861.

(J. W. Carhart, Jr., of Appleton was the regular correspondent of the Crescent, attached to the Second Wisconsin Regimental Band. He wrote this story June 25, 1861, from Washington, D.C., the day the Second Regiment arrived in the capital.)

Friend Crescent: At three o'clock on the morning of the 20th inst., the drums beat reveille and the busy hum of soldiers could be heard making hasty preparation for our departure from Camp Randall at Madison.

Our tents were struck at 5 a.m. and at 7 we marched to the eating house for breakfast and four days' rations. The rations consisted of one loaf of baker's bread, one half-pound of cheese, four slices of ham or beef and four pounds of crackers, which were stowed away in our haversacks (excepting the meat). Then we were marched to fill our canteens with water, and from thence to hear Gov. Randall make us a farewell speech. I did not get near enough to the stand to hear, but from the frequent cheering and manifest demonstrations of pleasure, I concluded the remarks were to the point.

Disliked Madison We then took the train of 30 cars and bade farewell to the place of all places the most delectable — swindling Madison. I will not stop to particularize, but merely remark that if any of our Appleton volunteers should be so unfortunate to encamp there, you will probably be informed of their experiences.

We arrived in Janesville at 1 p.m. and the good people welcomed us with a table spread with cold meats and bread, which we partook of with keen relish.

Our next reception was at Chicago, where we enjoyed a fine military display and marched for three miles through crowded streets amid the enthusiastic applause of people waving flags. At 9 p.m. we were en route for Cleveland by train.

Fed All Night Here let me say the people of Illinois, Michigan, and Indiana were alive to the country's cause. We were greeted all through the night with splendid music at almost every station. Ladies, some of whom traveled on foot more than three miles, crowded round the cars and passed pies, cakes or glasses of water through the windows. With heart-felt "goodbyes," oft repeated, we at length arrived at Cleveland and were escorted to the park, where the ladies (God bless them), passed us lemonade, sandwiches, hot coffee and cakes. We then took the train for Pittsburg and arrived at 4 a.m., three hours behind schedule. In passing through Ohio at various points we were showered with bouquets of flowers and mottoes. The ladies of Pittsburg treated us with hot coffee, which we drank with relish.

We arrived at Harrisburg at 11 p.m., pitched our tents and remained over the Sabbath. We here received our arms and on Monday morning at 11 o'clock, took cars for the ill-fated city of Baltimore. After several delays, we arrived in Baltimore and were greeted with the wildest enthusiasm by the Union men and women.

Mixed Reception The Regimental band, still without arms, was asked by Col. Conns to play. We replied we would if he would protect us. We immediately took the head of the battalion and responded with "The Star Spangled Banner," which was greeted with cheers, hisses and groans.

One fellow fired a pistol into our ranks and in a twinkling of an eye, there were enough revolvers drawn to have blown him to pieces if he had not escaped into the crowd. We played National Airs and Quicksteps for one and one-half miles through Baltimore.

While here, I was invited to a private house and took supper with a John T. Bishop, who informed me he had a brother in New London or just below, which relieved me of all suspicion of his loyalty. He related to me several incidents of ladies being asked to taste articles of food they had so kindly prepared for soldiers passing through Baltimore.

We arrived safely in Washington this morning, where we were protected by 68,000 troops, ready at a moment's warning for action. We do not know how long we are to remain here, but probably until after the next session of Congress.

Our men are all healthy and anxious for a fight. Washington is alive with traitors and we have to exercise care in what we say and do.

Broad Tax Base Only Answer to Spending

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Some professional colleagues have penned dispatches relating that members of the state legislature are receiving mail from constituents indicating displeasure about the prospects for a sales tax. One wonders whether that discovery qualifies as news, or whether there ever has been an electorate here, or in any other political jurisdiction, that indicated approval about the prospects for any kind of a general tax.

It is one of the eternal verities of government and politics that public spending continues to grow, under what elected representatives are satisfied is public demand and public need, as much concern for holding down costs as any one else and there is no cause for alarm when you find yourself, as a taxpayer, with nowhere to go to say anything if indeed, you had anything to say!

This brings me to the point. Since school consolidation with Neenah seems eminent, let us dispel the ridiculous idea, conjured in many minds that the city council is a group of uninformed boogey men with a club in one hand and a whip in the other, whose sole aim is to clobber the school budget and end education for all time. Let us instead, view the council (and the town chairmen who would represent the outlying districts) with respect and confidence as being level headed, sound-thinking men, with children and grandchildren of their own in mind when they check and double check the school budget.

Since the reorganization will be confusing and rather painful to many of us, let us not complicate matters further by throwing over a tried and true system. Let us, instead, come together, if we must, with the assured representation offered in our town chairmen and city councilmen.

In the event we, in the outlying areas, should be fortunate enough to elect members from our own districts to be school board, so much the better. However, since we have no assurance of this, let us not revert to taxation without representation.

Mrs. Kenneth Heinz
Box 16, Neenah

THE JOB It may be that more time will be required to spread that understanding and conviction. There remain many leaders, of public opinion who cannot, or won't, accept the idea.

One widely recognized politician will illustrate. When the legislature's sales tax hearing is held this week, one of the orators in the front row of the proceedings who will denounce the measure will be Jacob Friedrich, the dean of the Milwaukee organized labor leaders.

Friedrich is an effective voice for his clients. But while he will fight to the utmost of his skill against the idea of broadening the tax base, he also is in the vanguard of those who want more public spending, as for the enlargement of the size and quality of the University of Wisconsin where he serves as a regent. Friedrich wants a system under which everybody's children can go to college at nominal cost to themselves. He also wants a system in which a comparative handful of persons will pay the tax bills.

But the number of affluent taxpayers is steadily less adequate for the tax-yielding requirements of modern government. When that fact is generally recognized, tax revision will be assured.

Redistricting Is Painful

The state of Maine has been redistricted to meet the federal requirements due to the change in population during the past 10 years. In the future Maine will have two representatives instead of three. The new districts are numbered 1 and 2. District No. 1 is the southern district which includes most of the industrial counties but only 15 per cent of the land area. No. 2 district, with 85 per cent of the land area in the state, spreads over 25,854 square miles. It has 54.3 per cent of the population.

Maine's population increased by 55,491 during the 10 years between census takings or by 6.1 per cent, but since the national population increase averaged 18.5 per cent, Maine had to give up one of its representatives so that other states, where the growth was more rapid, can have more representation.

Wisconsin increased approximately 16 per cent in population and thus was able to hold its present number of 10 representatives in Congress. Wisconsin's largest congressional district is the 10th which takes in 14 counties in the northeast area or a total of about 14,000 square miles. This is less than half the size of the second district of Maine but is considered a sparsely settled area in Wisconsin. The redistricting of Wisconsin probably would add still more territory to the 10th district for the population of that area decreased 16.2 per cent according to the latest census while the first and second districts in south central Wisconsin gained ed 25.4 per cent and 35.8 per cent, respectively.

The redistricting of the state, however, is not merely a matter of dividing it into areas of approximately the same population. The redistricting always is strongly influenced by political considerations, since the incumbent congressmen have an interest in drawing a new district which will include, insofar as they can determine, the majority of the supporters of the incumbent. On the other hand, the majority party in the state will be interested in so dividing the minority party among the several districts as to leave it without a majority in any district if possible.

Thus in the state of Maine the division was made by Republicans who have a majority of both houses of the legislature and they included the industrialized county of Androscoggin in the rural district of the state. The Democrats are complaining that this was done to prevent the Democrats from having a majority in the industrial district in the south. Just how much of the complaint is justified is difficult to determine. It is pointed out that neither district is overwhelmingly in favor of either party.

The Republican congressional vote was greater in both districts in 1960 but the Democratic congressional vote was greater in both in 1958. It is probable that few if any states ever were redistricted without complaints from nearly everyone excepting those who drew the new districts.

Keeping Secrets From Russia

Not long ago President Kennedy called upon the nation's press to undertake some sort of self-censorship which would prevent the publication of information of value to a potential enemy. The press agreed wholeheartedly to do everything possible. Most publishers knew, however, that the proposal was much more difficult than it appeared from the President's statement and that not even voluntary censorship would be possible without some form of governmental direction.

The President, on the other hand, insisted that the government wanted no part of the undertaking and that the press should set up its own form of censorship. At the time many editors and publishers pointed out that most of the information of the type objected to was information released by governmental agencies for publication and that therefore the government itself was responsible for much of the published material to which the President objected.

Now Vice Admiral Hyman G. Rickover has charged that a $2.98 toy submarine on sale in America reveals some of the Polaris missile submarine secrets to the Russians and to anyone else interested. The manufacturer boasted that his toy is a model built in strict accordance with the specifications contained in the U.S. navy blueprints. He says the model incorporates all of the interior detail of the actual submarine including atomic reactor, control room, galley, crew's quarters and two Polaris missiles that can be launched. Admiral Rickover, who is known as the father of the atomic submarine, told a congressional committee that he fought to prevent the manufacture of the toy but was overruled. He said, "That information was handed out by the navy."

The admiral said that such information was released to the public "in a mistaken attempt to build up public opinion for their (military services) particular projects."

He said a good ship designer could "spend one hour on that model and tell he has millions of dollars worth of free information. It also gives him an idea of how many men he could put into the ship and all sorts of other things."

Admiral Rickover's comments on the space model toy serve to illustrate how difficult it would be for newspaper publishers to set up a system of self-censorship on this particular subject. There would be hundreds of editors dealing with thousands of individuals and departments in government service. Many of them would have very different ideas as to what properly could be published just as Admiral Rickover finds that he was in the minority on the manufacture of this toy. All the navy needed to do to prevent the dissemination of this information was to keep its plan in the classified file. But it chose not to do so.

Gout Caused by Uric Acid Accumulating in System

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am writing for my brother who is troubled with gout. What causes it? What is he allowed to eat and what not? What can he do for it? His doctor told him not to eat pork. We met someone with gout who said his doctor has him on a pork diet but he is not allowed to eat beef. Now we are puzzled. Who is right?—V.K."

"I can't tell you 'who is right.' Maybe they both are."

Gout, a disease known as far back as the days of imperial Rome, is a disorder in the metabolism of uric acid. That is to say, uric acid is present naturally in the system; but when the body cannot, in turn, dispose of it adequately, the excess can cause trouble.

Acid Accumulates

When one has gout, the uric acid accumulates in the blood, and eventually is deposited (or some of it) as crystals in certain joints, or even in such places as the ear lobes. The big toe is the classic spot, but it by no means is the only one.

By reputation, gout is a disease of people who live high, and eat a lot of rich food. As a matter of fact, this isn't necessarily true.

Nevertheless, high livers are usually big eaters, and it's easy to see why they may be especially prone to the misery of gout.

Uric acid is one of a group of chemicals known as purines. If you eat a low-purine diet, you get less uric acid in the system, and there's less for your faulty metabolism to get rid of.

No Objection

So a low-purine diet is reasonable and I see no objection to it between attacks—except that a purine-free diet is low in protein, which is necessary in a good diet. For that reason I can't advise continued use of a low-purine diet. Nor would it be very tasty.

in time. It would get monotonous. The high-purine foods are meats including sweetbreads, kidney (liver), fish and seafoods, herring, sardines, crab, and anchovies being very high.

Beef, pork, veal and mutton are equal in purine. I suppose if I had a patient who loved pork, I might prohibit it on the grounds that he'd eat some.

As to vegetables, mushrooms, asparagus, cauliflower, spinach, lentils, beans and peas are high in purines. Coffee, tea and cocoa are high, also.

So a gout patient asks, "What CAN I eat?" It's a good question. The answer is that cheese, milk and eggs have protein but no purine. Fruits, cereals and most vegetables except those listed above are low in purine, or have none.

Go Easy on Purine

Sufferers of gout should go easy on purine foods. However, it's hardly reasonable to try to avoid them all the time, because so many foods with them are highly valuable otherwise.

I don't know of anyone who ever halted gout attacks by diet alone, but several drugs are very helpful. Colchicine, an old, old remedy, remains a standby. Phenylbutazone and some steroids are good. Probenecid, taken as a preventive, is very effective, and I know gout sufferers who have gone for several years without an attack.

One thing to remember: Aspirin helps rid the system of uric acid—but don't use aspirin and probenecid at the same time.

Tax Problems

Neighboring States Enter Into Reciprocal Agreements

BY ROBERT R. GOLDENSTEIN

CHICAGO (AP)—A key figure in the nation's ever-broadening state income tax picture these days is the fellow who earns his paycheck in a neighboring state.

He has been the subject of heated debate in the legislative chambers of several states that collect income taxes.

The big issue he poses is — which state gets to keep his income tax dollars, the state where he lives or the state where he works?

36 States

Thirty-six states and the District of Columbia now impose income taxes. Commerce Clearing House, a private agency that reports on tax laws, says many of the states have satisfactory agreements with neighboring states and others are working toward a solution.

For instance: When West Virginia passed an income tax law recently it was able to work out reciprocal agreements with neighboring Kentucky and Maryland, because one offsets the action of the other.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Do you believe that using shortening that has been used before will cause cancer?—Mrs. S.K."

No.

NOTE TO MRS. A.C.: Your term, "after birth blues," is very descriptive. But it's a serious problem at times, and when (or if) a patient begins to slip back, have more treatment resumed just as soon as possible.

"Vitamin starvation" is possible even if you eat a lot. In order to check your diet to make sure you are getting necessary nourishment, write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper for a copy of his pamphlet, "Vitamins—The Alphabet of Health." (Copyright, 1961) both of which already had income tax laws.

All three states have directed firms hiring nonresidents to reduce the nonresidents' taxes in the amount the employee is taxed in his home state.

But such harmony is not easy to come by when a great many more employees commute to one state than to the other. For example, approximately 150,000 New Jersey residents flock to New York jobs each morning compared with 50,000 or so New Yorkers who work in New Jersey.

New Jersey had no income tax, but New York had—and Jerseyites who worked there were required to pay it, about $50 million a year total.

New Law

Written into the New York tax law is a provision that nonresidents may deduct their home state's income tax from the amount imposed by New York. Faced with the need to raise money for commuter transportation services, the New Jersey Legislature took a close look at this provision and adopted a new law.

From now on, Jerseyites who work in New York (and only they) must pay a New Jersey income tax in the same amount imposed on them by New York. In effect, they would simply begin paying their entire New York tax to New Jersey.

For its part, New Jersey will begin withholding for New York the income tax of the New Yorkers working in Jersey—about $10 million a year which the New Yorkers theoretically had been required to pay to their home state but which heretofore had not been withheld from their Jersey paychecks.

Noting that the effect of this action would be to give New Jersey $50 million in exchange for $10 million, New York officials are anything but pleased. They point out the Jersey tax may be unconstitutionally discriminatory because it doesn't apply to all the state's residents. They anticipate a court test.

Meanwhile, New York, with an apparent eye on collecting from its residents working in Connecticut, has completed an agreement with Connecticut.

New York will make income tax concessions to Connecticut residents working in New York and, in return, Connecticut will supply to New York employment and salary information concerning New York residents who work in Connecticut.

adopted a withholding tax which Wisconsin said voided an old agreement that neither would tax the other's residents.

Talks Collapsed

Negotiations were started to reach a reciprocal agreement but they collapsed when a Wisconsin legislative committee contended Minnesota stood to gain a half-million dollars a year because more Wisconsin residents are employed in Minnesota than vice versa.

The Wisconsin Assembly is studying a bill that would allow Wisconsin to tax the incomes of Minnesotans working there and, in return, Connecticut will distribute the money proportionately to Wisconsin communities whose residents work in Minnesota and are taxed there.

Railway May Drop Two Trains With ICC Okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission said that it sees no reason to oppose plans by the Chicago and North Western Railway to drop two passenger trains between Chicago and Green Bay, Wis.

The railroad gave notice on May 24 that it would drop trains 217 and 224 on July 6.

The ICC said it had examined the notice and protests against it, and "concluded not to enter upon an investigation of the proposed discontinuance."

Kennedy Invokes Taft Act in Shipping Strike

his executive order, Kennedy said the strike already has resulted in serious interruptions in the movement of food, oil and other commodities.

Hawaii Hit

"The supply lifelines to the state of Hawaii have been cut," Kennedy said. "There have been delays in the shipment of military cargoes."

Kennedy took note of the suggestion of some union leaders that they are willing to ease the strike to permit the movement of military supplies and essential commercial cargoes.

"These suggestions appear, on first impression, more tactful than substantial," Kennedy said.

"I request the board of inquiry to consider these suggestions however, and to include findings of fact regarding them in the report the board will submit to me."

Kennedy said that he was anxious that the dispute be settled through collective bargaining. He urged that the unions involved and the ship owners continue their bargaining, and use the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, as well as the emergency board of inquiry, in an effort to settle the dispute.

The action today does not bar the unions from continuing the strike.

Under the Taft-Hartley act, the 80-day cooling off period does not begin to run until a restraining order is actually issued.

Kennedy said in his statement that he favors more flexible procedures for dealing with labor disputes such as the maritime strike.

He said Goldberg has sought, in the course of this dispute, to develop such procedure, but has been unable to obtain the consent of all parties. Goldberg had suggested the creation of a commission to study the dispute and make recommendations, rather than have it go through Taft-Hartley procedures.

Kennedy said the dispute "presents new evidence of the imperative need for modifications in the present law," and said he will make suggestions to congress along these lines very shortly.

"In the meantime, this particular dispute must be met with the procedures at hand," Kennedy commented.

The strike, now in its eleventh day, involves virtually all American shipping companies and 70,000 men.

The striking unions are the National Maritime Union, Seafarers International Union, National Marine Engineers, International Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots, the American Radio Association, the Radio Officers Union, and the Staff Officers Association.

Britain Spurns Iraq's Claim to Oil Steikdom

prise. Nasser has shown more than passing interest in Kuwait and its future.

The U.A.R. president recently sent Sheikh Abdullah a warm message of congratulations on Kuwait's independence.

There was wide speculation that Saudi Arabia, another neighbor of Kuwait, might object to Kassem's move.

In his statement, the Iraqi premier insisted that Kuwait belonged to Iraq by historical right.

Kassem told a news conference Sunday night the takeover would be peaceful and the ruling sheik, Sir Abdullah As-salim As-sabah, 66, would be named chief administrator of the 5,800-square-mile territory.

Kassem, who led the revolt that toppled Iraq's Hashemite monarchy in 1958, warned the sheik, however, that if he misused his office, he would be considered rebellious.

The British Foreign Office first comment was that "it is Kuwait's affair now." Diplomatic sources suggested, however, that Britain would be ready to move in with aid if Kuwait sought it.

When it ended the protectorate last week, Britain announced it would continue to guarantee Kuwait against aggression provided the sheikdom asked for aid.

Valuable Prize

Questioned about Kassem's motives in annexing Kuwait, a diplomatic source in London said the sheikdom "is a very valuable prize—and that is a good enough reason." The ruling sheik has been receiving an estimated $3 million a day from a crude oil output that totaled more than 500 million barrels in 1959.

The American Gulf Oil Corp. and the British Petroleum Co. have been jointly engaged in exploiting the resources of Kuwait, which ranks fourth in world oil production after the United States, Venezuela and the Soviet Union. Iraq's output was more than 300 million barrels in 1959.

One London diplomat questioned Kassem's claim that Iraq is entitled to Kuwait for historical reasons. He said Kuwait had been recognized as independent by the British since 1914, several years before the British established Iraq as an independent kingdom after World War I, when it was carved out of the three former Turkish provinces of Basra, Baghdad and Mosul.

Kuwait, which lies on the Persian Gulf between Saudi Arabia and Iraq, signed a treaty with Britain in 1899 when it was seeking protection from the Turks. The sheikdom had remained under British protection since then but in practice had been conducting its own foreign relations for some time.

the National Guard, the federal police, was reported to have led a detachment which tried to seize the electric power plant supplying Caracas. Loyal army forces drove off the rebels.

Rest of Country Quiet

Outside Barcelona the country was reported quiet. Traffic was detoured two blocks away from the Miraflores presidential palace but the only military guard on duty there was a detachment of steel-helmeted soldiers. On the occasion of previous uprisings armed cars have been sent to guard the palace.

The revolt came 48 hours after Gen. Pedro Jose Quevedo, the army commander, said the armed forces would put down any attempts at "personal adventures." Quevedo Saturday proclaimed the army's loyalty to Betancourt.

The uprising was the fourth reported revolt of 1961 against Betancourt's middle-road administration. Both leftists and rightists have been involved. There has also been a series of strikes and riots with political overtones.

Johnson Warns Khrushchev on Berlin Crisis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, in a somber warning to Nikita Khrushchev, says the Soviet premier will make a "tragic mistake" if he underestimates America's obligation to the people of West Berlin.

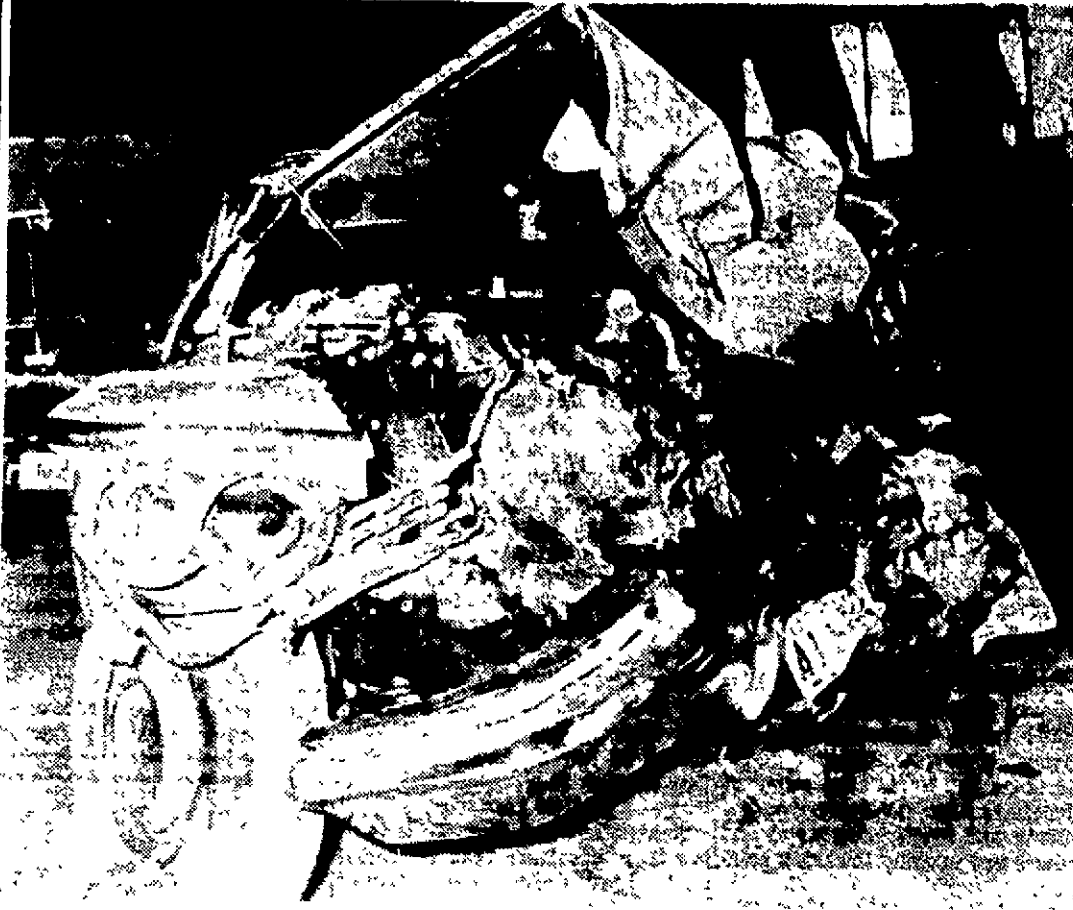

Johnson spoke yesterday at the dedication of the International Airport's new jet age terminal, a complex of futuristic structures.

In a bluntly worded address, Johnson charged that Russia alone is responsible for a new international tension. Stating that Khrushchev had compelled another crisis by again threatening to make a separate peace with East Germany, the Vice President said:

"Russia is trying to force the western world to recognize that the partition of Germany is permanent and that all our rights in Berlin in the future will be a matter of negotiations with East Germany."

Johnson, mentioning the recent conferences President Kennedy conducted on the current Berlin crisis, said he had no intention of giving the Soviet leader any clues on future American policy.

After his speech, Johnson flew to Honolulu for the Governors' Conference.

Three of the four persons killed in a head-on auto accident on State 49 near Berlin Friday were in this car. They were the driver, Lester Kurtzbein, Mrs. Kurtzbein, and their grandson, Rodney Poeschner, 12, all of Markesan. Also killed in the crash was John P. Isley, Fond du Lac, driver of the other car.

fect on human dignity and liberty around the world I feel all of us, regardless of party, should stand behind him to support the defense of freedom with whatever steps are necessary," Rockefeller said.

Other Republicans Critical

Rockefeller's attitude contrasted with criticisms voiced by former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the 1960 GOP presidential nominee, and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a potential bidder for the 1964 party prize.

In recent speeches Nixon has contended that the Kennedy administration has tended to "talk big and act timidly." Goldwater has said that it will "take a lot more doing than is being done" to win the cold war.

Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, California Democrat, said he believes the people are supporting Kennedy in the international field despite the Cuban invasion fiasco and the difficulties over Laos. He said he doesn't think this is the time for political criticism in that area.

Point to Dangers

Brown and Gov. Steve McNichols of Colorado, the conference chairman, said in separate interviews, however, they fear the public is not sufficiently awake to the danger that faces the country if Soviet Premier Khrushchev should decide to force a Berlin showdown.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, scheduled for a major speech at the annual state dinner Tuesday night, has been emphasizing the seriousness of the international situation.

Johnson arrived on the scene Sunday night to take the place of President Kennedy, who canceled out of his scheduled appearance before the governors last week.

Government Tries To Stop Exodus Of Dominicans

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP) — More than 700 Dominicans have been leaving each month to find work in the United States, but new government moves to cut prices and boost production have checked the exodus.

The new measures launched after the assassination of dictator Rafael L. Trujillo nearly a month ago are aimed at breaking monopolies controlling local business. They have proved popular with the people and may stop the mass emigration.

The U.S. Consulate said it had issued about 7,000 visas since September and that the figure rose to nearly 800 a month last winter after Roman Catholic bishops put out a pastoral letter urging freedom of movement for Dominicans.

Nazi Likens His Role to Pontius Pilate

Eichmann Says He's Washed His Hands Of Guilt Feeling

By THOMAS A. REEDY

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann today likened his role in the Nazi slaughter of the Jews to that of Pontius Pilate and said he was able to wash his hands of any feeling of guilt.

The former Gestapo colonel in charge of "Jewish affairs" reached back into Christian history to describe his thoughts of almost 20 years ago when the decision was reached to exterminate the Jews "as the final solution to the problem."

All three Israeli judges leaned forward in rapt attention as Eichmann probed into his own ego. His normal manner of speaking, sharp and carefully enunciated in drill sergeant style, shifted to one of soft and earnest pleading.

Nazi Conference

The key of Eichmann's testimony opening the 11th week of his trial lay in the Wannsee conference of top level Nazi bureaucrats outside Berlin January 20, 1942.

It was there that Gestapo chief Reinhard Heydrich said the final solution was death for 10 million European Jews. Eichmann said he was unaware of this when he prepared the machinery for the meeting at Heydrich's behest.

Hitler's civil servants from various departments accepted the extermination idea "with boundless enthusiasm," Eichmann testified.

Heydrich, who had expected some opposition, "exulted at the success" of the meeting which required only an hour or so, said Eichmann.

Defense counsel Robert Servatius asked Eichmann about his own reaction.

The defendant replied: "Here I felt a certain solace and appeasement, considering I had done my utmost despite my relatively low rank of lieutenant colonel and I had thought of a 'final solution' which was not repellent or hideous but which was practical and feasible."

Bring Order

"I did my best to bring order into all the turmoil in deportations. My unflinching efforts could be seen in the Radom plan and later in the Madagascar plan (for shipping the Jews to the island of Madagascar). I could say to myself that in spite of my determination, I had to toe the line. What was done was not my doing. I had the feeling of Pontius Pilate. I felt I was not guilty. What was laid down was done by the elite, the popes of the regime."

Family Slaughtered; Boy Left Lonely Orphan

MONROE (AP) — Saturday, June 24, 1961, is a day that will live forever in the memory of Randy Lee Smith.

It is the day on which he lost his family in the crash of a freight train and an automobile at a grade crossing at Albany.

His father, his mother, his two little sisters and his brother—all killed.

Randy, alone, survived. Stunned and battered, he lies under sedation in the children's ward of St. Clare Hospital, with a broken leg. He doesn't know yet that he is an orphan.

On Wednesday afternoon funeral services for the family of John W. Smith, 29, of rural Evansville, will be held at the Shaver funeral home in Albany. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery in Monroe.

Ironically, the Smith family car—a 1955 Buick—collided with a slow-moving freight train that makes the round trip between New Glarus and Monticello only three times a week.

Near Home

The Smiths were on a Saturday afternoon shopping trip and en route home with only 12 miles to go when the crash occurred at the Highway 59 grade crossing at Albany's outskirts.

Smith, a portable feed mill operator, was driving. His wife, Marilyn, 25, was in the front seat. Their two girls, Tammy Marie, 3, and Beckie Lynn, 1, apparently were sitting in the front seat, too. Randy and his brother, Roger, 8, were in the back seat where the groceries had been placed.

Red Chinese Officials Get Political Asylum After Escape to Burma

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Two Chinese communist officials who fled to Burma have been granted political asylum.

They are Han Ti-Ling, 38, formerly with the labor office at the Chinese People's Bank, and Kwang Kway-Kyan, 23, a secretary with the Government Broadcasting Department.

They said they tried first to cross over to Hong Kong but communist vigilance prevented this. They proceeded to the Burma border and crossed near Lashio where Burmese police arrested them.

U.S. Will Hold Open House at Space Center

40,000 Expected to Look at Exhibits Including Saturn

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The United States will openly take a step in space next Saturday where Russia practices secrecy.

One of the nation's top security areas—the Marshall Space Flight Center—will be opened to anyone who wants to take a look.

The Saturn rocket is on the list of special attractions, and any Russians who happen to be around can drop in with the American tourists.

40,000 Expected
Crowds will stream through the top secret reservation from 8:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. on the anniversary of the establishment of the space flight center. More than 40,000 are expected.

The open house will permit the public for the first time to see the giant Saturn C1 space vehicle in its static test stand.

And there will be a demonstration of one of the Saturn's eight engines in another test stand every two hours.

No Cameras
But don't expect to take any pictures. No cameras will be allowed. Rigid security regulations will be observed.

Marked routes, patrolled by military policemen, will help tourists see all they will be permitted to see.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Saturday's open house should be the only time this year the space flight center will be opened to the public.

Menominees Honor Melvin Laird For His Work on Tribal Problems

Post-Crescent News Service

KESHENA — An honorary chief became further entrenched into the lives of the Menominee Indians Sunday when he was presented with one of the tribe's traditional beaded jackets and other items of Indian apparel for the members of his family.

Seventh District Congressman Melvin R. Laird, who was made an honorary chief of the tribe in 1954, was presented with the gifts by John Fossum, chairman of the Laird Day committee, during the ceremony which included Indian dancing and drum beating. "We have gathered here today to honor our representative in congress who has put his heart and soul into the problems of our community," said Gordon Dickie, a member of the board of directors of the new Menominee Enterprises, Inc.

500 Persons Attend
Nearly 500 persons attended the special program in the outdoor woodland bowl constructed among the virgin pine timber.

Laird was honored for his part in attempting to have legislation passed which would provide assistance for the tribe in its transition from a reservation to another county in the state. Besides the jacket, he was presented with a string of beads by Manny Boyd, who operates the Keshena Indian village.

The House of Representatives has approved the Laird bill which provides a diminishing health, education and welfare plan for six years starting with an annual grant of $540,000 and decreasing to $54,000 in the final year. The bill, however, did not meet with favorable senate approval.

Pledges Assistance
"I have always felt deeply responsible for the welfare of the Menominee Indian tribe and I promise you here today that I will do everything in my power working with committees and with other congressmen to see that the Menominees get fair and just treatment from congress," Laird stated.

Jerome Grignon, one of the tribal delegates sent to Washington when the termination proceedings began this spring, expressed his thanks on behalf of the entire council for the manner in which Laird handled the Menominee issue.

"Although he was involved deeply in national and international affairs, he opened the doors to us when we arrived and worked with us diligently throughout the termination period," Grignon stated.

"Laird was able to get us a good bill out of the house and is still working to see that fair legislation is passed," Grignon added.

'Warring' Unions May Mean Split of AFL-CIO

BY VICTOR RIESEL

NEWARK, N. J.—It's almost unbelievable. But it's all on motion pictures, and in color, too. These films give a blow by blow description of one union declaring war on another. The first, tougher union wanted the jobs held by the second union's members—so the first outfit simply ripped the tools and building material out of the hands of men working on a housing project. Work was shut down for six weeks. Thousands of dollars were lost. And the public paid, too, when the government had to move in.

It began last March. There were 12 union carpenters employed by Cement Work, Inc. This firm was in the process of providing concrete and brick work services for builders of an apartment development in a suburb—East Orange, N. J. The company also employed hod carriers and common laborers, members of Local 502. The hod carriers simply decided they wanted the 12 carpenters' jobs.

Hod Carriers Invade
On March 1, the carpenters were stripping pans and beams from hardened concrete and began carrying them to the next point where concrete would be poured. Suddenly a squad of hod carriers moved in from another location on the construction site. They simply left their work. They then ripped "two-by-fours" (pieces of lumber), crowbars and jacks from the hands of the carpenters.

The latter were outnumbered almost four to one. Without their boards and tools they couldn't work.

Next day the carpenters arrived. This time two or three hod carriers converged on each of the carpenters. Again the laborers tore the tools from the carpenters' hands. This was getting to be a habit. So a carpenters' business agent, Gerard Sassone, decided to put it all on record.

"Take It Down"
He got himself an eight mm color camera. Next time the bemusled hod carriers grabbed the carpenters' tools and supplies from their hands, was all "taken down" by movies.

Finally the contractor had to shut down operations for six weeks. He was caught in the middle. The firm had to lay off the carpenters because of the threats and violence of the hod carriers. Then the battle was tossed into the lap of the regional National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) headed by John Cuneo. There were—and are—petitions and cross petitions. There have been all sorts of hearings, drawing of complaints, viewing of motion pictures, scheduling of full debate, postponements—and finally the official testimony will be taken by the Board on July 24.

Costs You Money
All this costs money—your money. Government officials, phones, investigators, long documents don't come free. Multiply this by hundreds of such hearings across the land and you get the high cost to the public of this type of regional labor imperialism.

Not included in this are the lost wages, the lost profits, and the taxes the Government would take if there were no such jurisdictional warfare.

There apparently is no escaping such feuds. The hod carriers' raid is one type of war. Here, the hod carriers and the carpenters are construction unions in a civil war of their own. But there is another type of labor war. Just as often the construction unions band together and fight the industrial unions.

Typical Fight
Typical is the feud at a new American Cyanamide Co., acrylic fiber factory near Milton, Fla. The construction-labor combination wanted each craft in the plant to sign with a different union. The industrial union bloc, led by Walter Reuther's colleagues and, oddly enough, John Lewis' union as well, wanted one big plant-wide union to cover all production and maintenance workers.

No one questioned the unionization of the new installation. It was merely a question of which union officials would speak for the men. This made more work for the

Wars Within Wars

These feuds, these wars within wars, are typical of the rancor which has all but split the AFL-CIO. There will be conciliation efforts made at labor's high command session next week at Unity House, Pa. But the wars won't be settled. The fight will head for the floor of the national convention next Dec. 7 in Miami Beach. At that time some of the national labor chiefs may take a walk right out of the AFL-CIO. And then this country will see some real feuding—with the public caught right in the middle. (Copyright, 1961)

Winning Africa Will Not be Easy, Quick, or Localized

BY SMITH HEMPSTONE
Chicago Daily News Service

NAIROBI, Kenya — The winning of the cold war in Africa will be a victory neither quick nor easy. It will be won or lost as much in the bus stations of Alabama and the slums of London as in Africa itself. As such, every American has a role to play in the winning or the losing of this continent. Racial discrimination in America and England clearly aids the cause of world communism in Africa. The only surprising fact is that it has not hurt us more than it has.

This is probably due to the fact that African political leaders have been so involved in the problems of winning and consolidating their political independence that they have had little time for the social problems of black minorities elsewhere.

This stage is drawing to a close as the African states approach maturity. Their leaders will be watching to see how closely American practice follows American political theory. The absence of racial discrimination under the Communist system makes it even more imperative that the West put its house in order. But this is only one of several steps that must be taken if Africa is not to be lost.

Equally important is the need to demonstrate that the West has both the means and the will to triumph over world communism peacefully, or, if need be, through war.

Traditional Mixture

In a very real sense, Africa has no loyalties. The very concept of nationhood is new here and most Africans have not evolved to the point where they can discriminate between two great rival theories of government — democracy and authoritarian communism.

The traditional form of African tribal government was a mixture of democracy and authoritarianism. Colonial rule, even in its most benevolent form, was authoritarian in that the people had no control over their own destinies.

Although the new African states have inherited the apparatus of democracy from their colonial mentors, they have no essential devotion to the democratic theory of government.

Hence phrases such as "the free world," "government of the people, by the people and for the people," and "liberal democracy" have no real meaning in Africa.

Since Africa sees little to choose has added to the allure of the Communist image in Africa.

It would be unnatural if the Africans were not interested in learning more about a people and a system of government to which their former mentors are so bitterly opposed.

This does not mean, of course, that the West should encourage Communist penetration of Africa. What it does mean is that we should try to demonstrate not how wicked the Communists are but how the West holds mankind's best hope for a fuller social and economic life.

The Russians and the Red Chinese enter the struggle for Africa with many disadvantages. Their knowledge of the problems of the continent is almost entirely theoretical.

Many Who Know

In contrast, there are hundreds of Britons, Frenchmen, Belgians and Portuguese who have forgotten more about Africa than the Russians will ever learn.

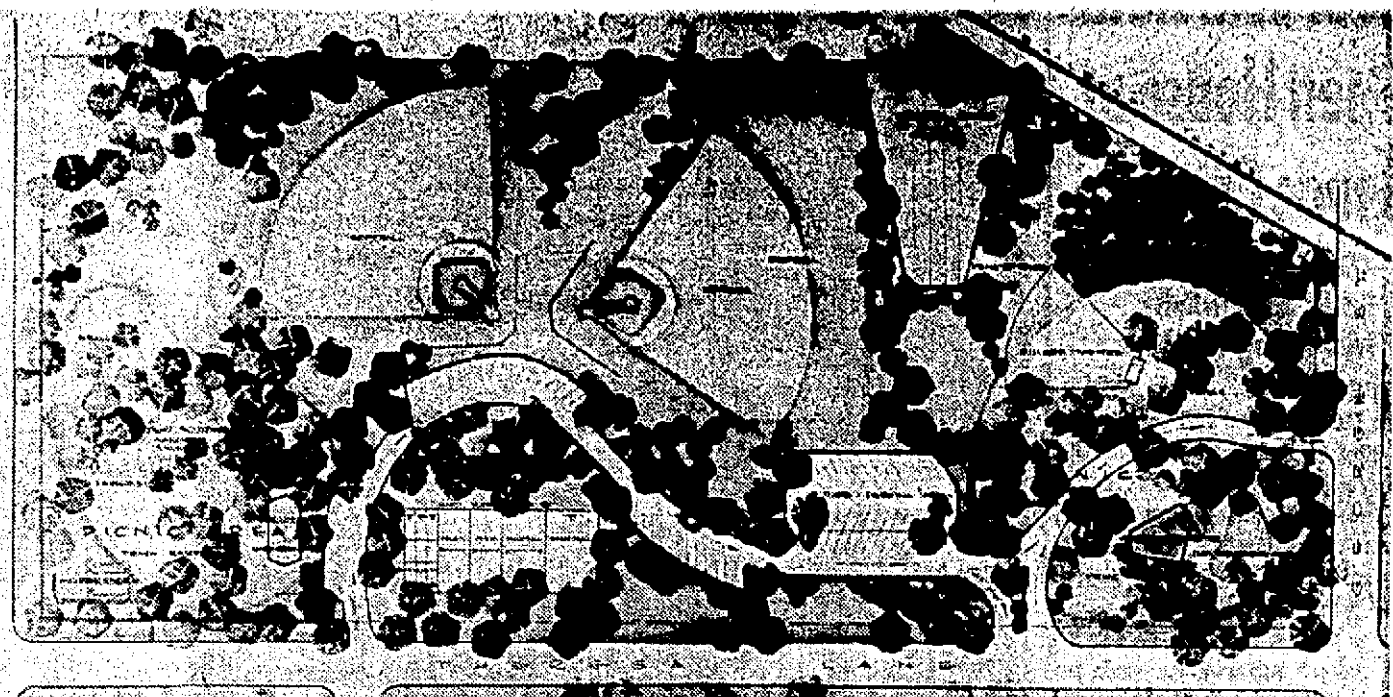

The problem is to apply this knowledge for the benefit of the West. By making a seven-foot-tall bogeyman out of the Communist, we give him an advantage he need not possess.

We have every reason to believe that our system of government and our economic theory is superior to that of the Communists. If this is the case, we can demonstrate it in peaceful competition in Africa.

Never Easy Victory

The way to victory is not easy. Neither is it a goal impossible to attain. We have only to live up to our own ideals at home, and to stand by those who cast their lot with us abroad, and to show both by word and deed that we fear no competition with world communism, either in peace or war.

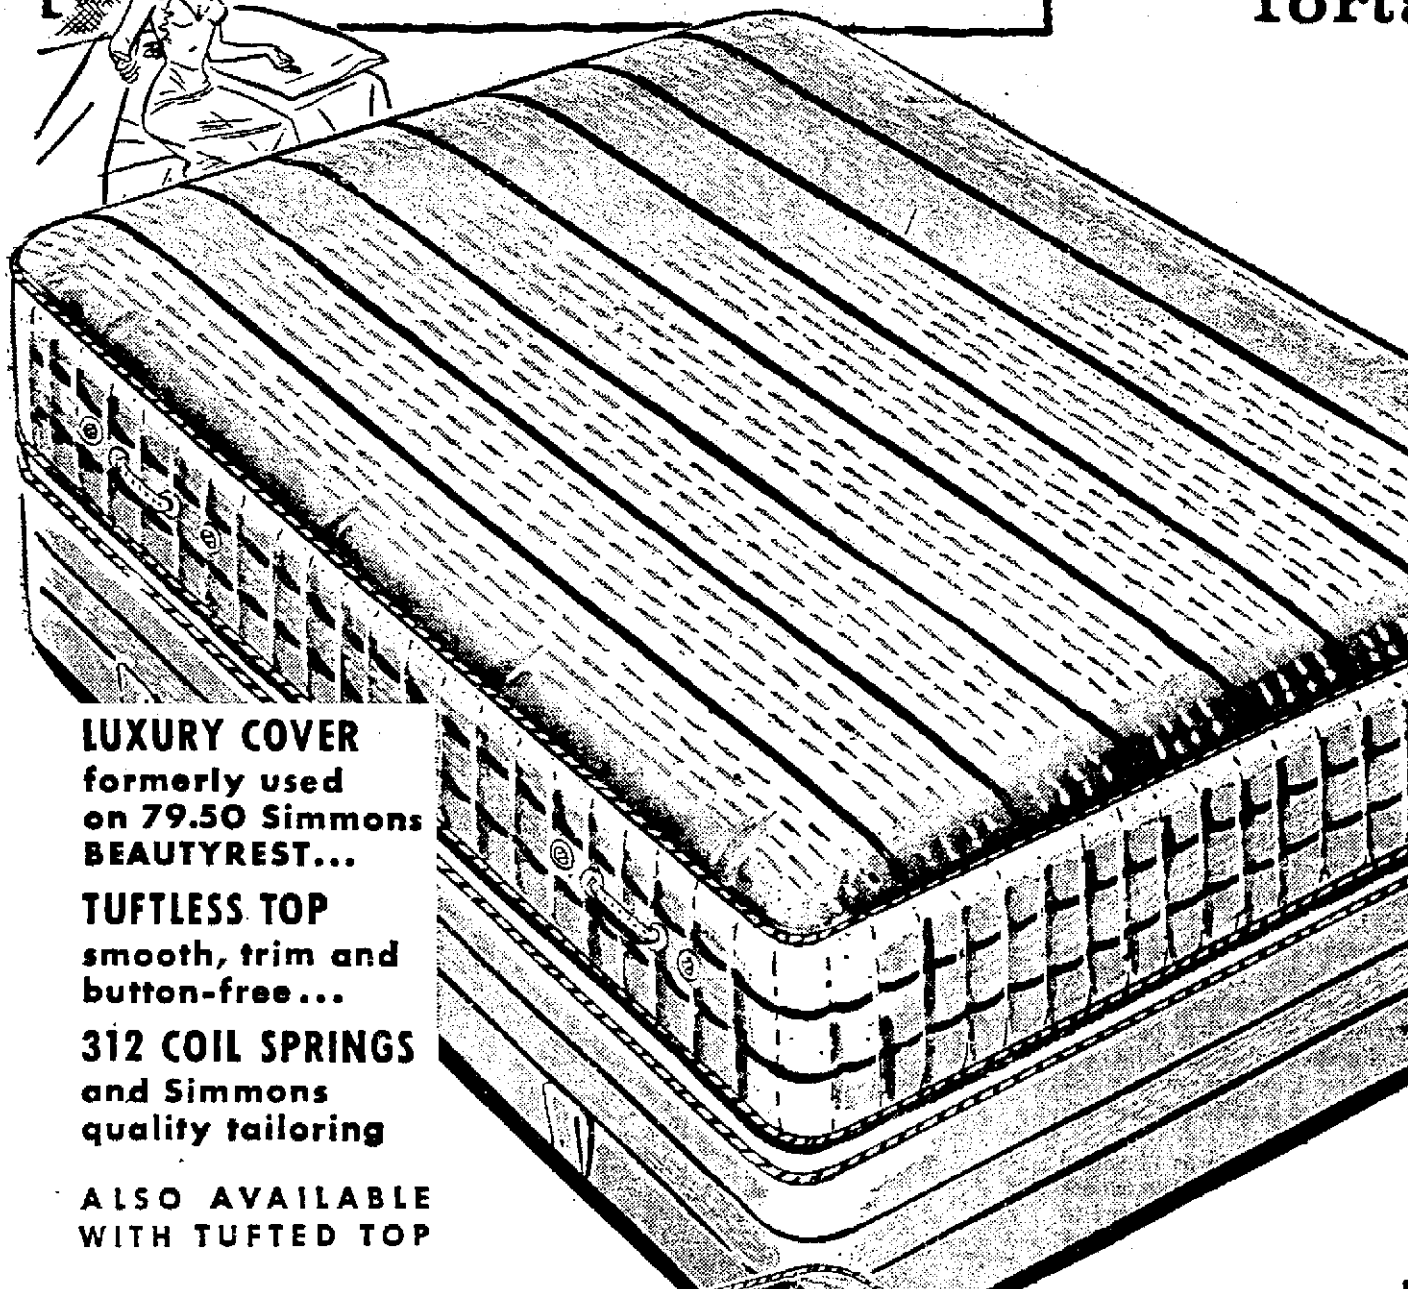

If the West loses Africa, it will be less a tribute to Communist strength than an earnest of our own ineptness.

An Architect Envisions the finished second Town of Menasha Park, which will be near County Highway P. Preliminary road work on the site has started. Projects at the north end of the park, including the hillside band shell, are planned for in the future.

Present plans call for softball diamonds, tennis courts, shuffleboard courts, an archery range, play areas and picnic grounds. John Gillespie and Associates, Appleton, are the architects.

By the same token, those nations such as United Arab Republic, Morocco, Guinea, Mali and Ghana, whose leaders follow policies inimical to the West, should be told frankly that they cannot expect large-scale Western help.

But the radical African leaders should be made to understand that a cause-and-effect relationship exists in international affairs and that the United States is not so soft as to treat its friends and enemies on an equal basis.

The final decision in the East-West struggle can not be made in Africa until the continent has been more fully exposed to Soviet influence.

This may sound paradoxical, but the fact remains that much of the Soviet bloc's strength in Africa derives from the fact that the Russians and Chinese are an unknown quantity.

MORRISON — Roger Drewiski fired a 2-hit shutout to drop previously-unbeaten Freedom off the Fox River Valley League lead Sunday afternoon. The score was 3-0.

Drewiski and Freedom's Gene Schlender hooked in a tight pitching duel. In the fourth, Verne Pahl blasted a long homer to break the scoreless tie.

Fans Nine
Drewiski fanned nine batters and walked only one. Schlender struck out seven and walked a pair. The game was a fast moving one, with the nine innings being played in only 1 hour and 27 minutes.

The two runs in the fifth scored when Elmer Otto blasted a double down the left field line with two men on.

Freedom's only hits were singled by Jim Vande Wetering in the second and Dick Zeratsky in the seventh.

Morrison had seven hits off Schlender, three by Otto.

Topeka defeated Des Moines, 6-3, in the 3-1 League Sunday.

Larry Rancourt's 2-run homer in the third was the big wallop against the Demons, who wasted 12 hits and made three errors.

Lincoln's Bob Locker increased his record to 7-4 with a three-hit, 7-2 decision over Burlington. Gary Johnson made it easy for Locker with a three-run homer in the seventh. Locker, a former Iowa State University pitcher, hurled a five-hitter in his last previous start.

U.S. Weightmen May Not Enter European Track Tests

BOSTON (AP) — America's top weight men, including olympic champions, are refusing to accompany the U.S. track and field team on its trip to Europe next month because of a dispute over expenses, the Boston Traveler said today.

Larry Strum of the Traveler said Uncle Sam's top javelin, hammer and shot men were balking on the grounds they can not afford to be away from their jobs for the three weeks planned.

Withdrawal of these athletes, backbone of the U.S. squad, would damage America's hopes of beating the Soviet Union in their dual meet in Moscow July 15-16. The team, scheduled to leave July 9 and return Aug. 1, also has meets scheduled in Poland, West Germany and Britain.

The list of those turning down the trip, Strum said, includes Hal Connolly and Al Hall, hammer throw; Dallas Long and Parry O'Brien, shot put; Al Oerter and Rink Babka, discus.

Several other athletes are on the doubtful list, the Traveler said. They include Otis Davis, crack quarter-miler; Jim Beatty, miler, and Bill Alley, javelin.

Centerfielder Jim Piersall, of the Indians, left, throws a hook at Detroit Tiger Pitcher Jim Bunning in the fifth inning of the first game of a double header in Cleveland. Piersall charged to the mound after being hit on the wrist by a Bunning pitch. His punch was far wide of Bunning. The incident touched off a near free-for-all among players of both teams, and resulted in the ejection of Piersall and two other Indians from the game.

Giants Split Doubleheader With Cards

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Experts shook their heads in disbelief last December when Cincinnati General Manager Bill DeWitt traded shortstop Roy McMillan for Joey Jay, a second-rate Milwaukee right-hander.

"How can you trade away your best infielder for a pitcher who has not won more than nine games in any season?" they asked.

The experts were even more critical last May when the Reds sent their No. 1 catcher, Ed Bailey, to the San Francisco Giants for second baseman Don Blasingame.

Double Figures
"Bailey reached double figures in homers in each of the last five years," they pointed out accusingly, "while Blasingame had just had his poorest season, hitting a sickly .235. Besides, who's going to catch for Cincinnati?"

The Reds answered their critics in the first inning of the game. They merely threw in another convincer Sunday when Jay registered his ninth victory over Los Angeles. The triumph widened the Reds' first-place lead to three games over the Dodgers in the National League race.

The Reds scored all their runs in the first inning and it was Blasingame who opened the gates with the first of his three hits. The Reds got eight hits off loser Stan Williams and four successors and Gerry Zimmerman, who stepped into Bailey's shoes as the team's No. 1 catcher, got two of them.

Split Twin Bill
San Francisco's third place Giants split four games off the pace, splitting a doubleheader with St. Louis. The Giants won the opener 6-4 and the Cards took the second 3-1. Chicago's Cubs downed Milwaukee 5-3. Philadelphia earned a split with Pittsburgh.

Foxes Down Cedar Rapids Twice, Open Home Stand

Cochran's Homer Tips Braves, 3-1

Post-Crescent News Service
CEDAR RAPIDS — "Nellie" Cochran provided the key blow here Saturday night as his 3-run homer powered Fox Cities to a 3-1 victory over Three-I league-leading Cedar Rapids.

Cochran, who also doubled in one of his other four trips, hit his home run with Chuck Smiley and Jim Caldwell aboard in the third inning. That was all the help that Johnny Ellen and Dick Tetrault needed.

Aided by two double plays, Ellen won his fifth game by scattering seven hits in the first seven innings. When he got into trouble in the eighth, Tetrault came in to put out the fire.

Two walks and a hit loaded the bases for Cedar Rapids in the eighth, bringing Tetrault to the mound.

Paul Snyder, who broke out of a batting slump with 3 hits in 3 official trips, then blasted a ball to deep center field. It missed going over the wall by a few feet and plated Karl Frantz with the only Cedar Rapids run.

Tetrault then fanned Gene Johnson, and Joe Trenary grounded out to end the inning. Fox Cities-3 Cedar Rapids-1.

Wuesthoff Wins Sports Car Event

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Porsche and a Lotus XI swept top honors Sunday at regional sports car races at State Fair Park.

Bill Wuesthoff of Milwaukee averaged 78.3 miles an hour in a Porsche RS-60 in winning the 57-mile event for classes B, C, D, E and F Modified and Formula junior cars.

James Scott of Libertyville, Ill., took the 38-mile event in a Porsche at a speed of 67.7 m.p.h. The race was for F, G and H class production cars.

Tom Terrell of LaGrange, Ill., drove a Lotus XI 71.4 miles an hour to capture the 38-miler for class B and C production and G modified models.

Robert Cherry of Davenport, Iowa, averaged 68.1 in a Porsche 1600 to beat the field of D and E production and H modified entries at 38 miles.

Alman broke the deadlock in single and also drove in two runs with a third-inning double.

Clintonville rallied for six runs in the third inning after Kaukauna had taken a 1-0 lead in the second. Marshak and Bohman both doubled, driving in two runs each in the inning. Clintonville added three more in the fifth.

Pitcher Curt Marshak hurled and batted Clintonville to a 9-1, rain - abbreviated, triumph over Kaukauna Sunday in Fox Valley Legion League play.

The victory stretched first-place Clintonville's win streak to five in Central Division play.

Marshak allowed Kaukauna two

Cubs Hand Braves 5-3 Loss Before Crowd of 25,454

Low Burdette Will Face Cards' Jackson at St. Louis Tonight

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves, who dipped below the .500 mark nearly four weeks ago, are finding it tough to get back at that mediocre break-even level. And the lowly Chicago Cubs are one of the big causes.

The Braves had another crack at evening their season record Sunday, but dropped a 5-3 decision to the Cubs before a County Stadium crowd of 25,454, the largest since the opening day turnout of 33,327 April 11.

The victory enabled the seventh-place Cubs to take the series by a game margin of 2-1 and gave them a 6-5 record against Milwaukee this year. The Braves fell 10 games behind front-running Cincinnati and left for St. Louis with a fifth place record of 30-32.

Have to get Back
"We have to get back to .500 before we can do anything," said Manager Charlie Dressen before the Braves made a hurried bus trip to the airport. "After that, we can aim for the top clubs. Losing the series to the Cubs after winning three straight from the Giants hurts."

The Cubs, paced by Al Heist, George Altman and Billy Williams, jumped on Milwaukee ace Warren Spahn and then called up reliever Barney Schultz to preserve the victory in the series windup.

Schultz, a 34-year-old knuckle ball hurler called up from the minors a couple of weeks ago, took over for starter Don Cardwell with two out in the sixth and retired the last 10 batters in a row.

His First Pitch
The Cubs scored twice in the first inning when Heist, a .174 hitter, hit Spahn's first pitch of the game into the left field bleachers for his second homer. Then, with two out, Altman tripled and scored on the first of four straight singles by Williams.

The Braves tied the count in the second on a single by Frank Thomas, who extended his hitting streak to 11 games, a double by Roy McMillan and Spahn's hit became first and second.

Altman broke the deadlock in the third when he was credited with an inside the park homer. Gino Cimoli and Hank Aaron converged on Altman's wind - blown drive to right center, but the ball hit the fence and bounced back. Aaron couldn't pick up the ball as Altman raced around.

The Cubs added single runs in

Strikes Out 15 As New London Triumphs, 5-0

NEW LONDON — New London began the second round of play in the Fox Valley American Legion League by downing Appleton, 5-0, Saturday afternoon.

Mike Herres, after pitching a no-hit game last Monday, returned to the mound Saturday to pitch a 2-hit shutout. The hits given up by Herres were both singles, one in the second and another in the fifth, both were hit by Appleton's center fielder, Tom Timmers.

Herres struck out 15 and walked only two.

New London started its scoring with two in the second inning. Herres singled in the first tally and the second run scored on an error by the first baseman. Loser Wayne Trinrud was replaced by Alan Krabbe in the seventh after he gave up a walk, hit a batter and allowed a single. Krabbe came in and retired the side and pitched scoreless ball for the rest of the game.

Trinrud struck out eight and walked four. Krabbe fanned three in his two innings.

Liggett Hits Two Homers In 9-3 Win

The Fox Cities Foxes whipped Cedar Rapids, 9-3, Sunday to cut the Three-I league lead of the Braves to 2½ games.

Tonight, the Foxes return home to entertain Topeka. Game-time at Goodland Field is 8 p.m.

Jim Liggett smashed two home runs Sunday to pace the Foxes' second straight win over Cedar Rapids. John Miller, who pitched shutout ball for the first eight innings, gained his third victory.

He was relieved in the eighth by Dick Tetrault after the Braves had scored all of their runs on Ron Hunt's bases-loaded double.

Miller's run-scoring single and Liggett's 3-run homer in the second got the Foxes off to a big start.

John Griffin and Dick Yenchas each batted in a run with a single in the third.

CHICAGO (AP) — Owners of American and National League baseball teams begin their meetings today with two problems upmost: National League expansion and skyrocketing bonuses to young potential big-leaguers.

Today, National and American League owners will hold separate meetings and tomorrow executives from the majors will meet jointly.

The National League session will bring a report from a five-member committee of general managers on how to fit the two new 1962 members — New York and Houston — into a 10-team circuit on an equitable basis.

Each American League club placed 15 players on a draft list, with seven subject to claim by each of the new teams at a fixed price of $75,000 apiece.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Milwaukee's Augie Pabst won the first Hoosier Grand Prix road race Sunday at new Raceway Park, risking expulsion from the Sports Car Club of America.

Pabst was third in a Scarab in the first 100 mile heat, won by Lloyd Ruby of Wichita Falls, Texas, who drove a Maserati at 77.06 miles an hour. After Pabst was unable to shift gears in the latter part of the first heat, his crew installed a borrowed transmission and he won the second 100 miles at 79.64 m.p.h.

Ruby, running second, was slowed down on the theory a first and second would beat Pabst's first and third. However, the award was made on a total time basis and Pabst won by 7.3 seconds. Pabst, 28, collected $2,150 of the $11,150 purse.

The SCCA had announced it would pull the licenses of all its drivers who raced in the event, sponsored by the United States Auto Club, but seven defied the ban. FIA, the international sanctioning body, had approved the race and said it would pick up international licenses of SCAA drivers who went along with the boycott of Raceway Park.

who cast Cash away, did not even bother to give him a trial.

The 26-year-old Tigers' first baseman slammed three home runs Sunday to share the day's spotlight with the Chicago White Sox who soared to their 10th straight sweeping a doubleheader from Washington 7-3 and 6-3. The double triumph gave Al Lopez' comeback crew a record of 17 victories in its last 18 games.

Despite Cash's heroics, the the Tigers could do no better than split with Cleveland, thereby cutting their first place lead in the American League race to 1½ games over second-place New York. The Tigers won the opener 6-3 and Cleveland took the nightcap 4-3. The Yankees downed Minnesota 8-4. Baltimore outlasted Los Angeles 9-8 in 14 innings. Boston and Kansas City divided a pair, the Red Sox winning the first game 7-4 and the A's salvaging the nightcap 3-2.

Cash drove in four runs in the opener, walloping a pair of two-run homers off loser Wynn Hawkins. His slugging enabled Jim Bunning to register his seventh victory. The veteran right-hander needed help in the eighth but did very well in a scuffle with Cleveland's Jimmy Piersall three innings earlier.

The Indians' temperamental outfielder became enraged when hit on the wrist by a Bunning pitch and charged out to the mound. Piersall, along with two of his mates who came to his assistance, were ejected.

Off the Fence
Cash's nightcap homer was not enough. The Indians snapped a tie in the ninth when Chuck Essegian sent a drive off the right field fence with one out and the bases loaded. Ironically, Essegian was not credited with a hit because Vic Power failed to touch second and was forced for the second out as the winning run scored.

The Indians snapped Detroit's five games winning streak and broke their own seven-game losing string.

Cash leads the American League in batting with .377, in runs batted in with 66, and his 24 homers are only three behind league leader Roger Maris of the Yankees. The stocky Texan was acquired from Cleveland April 12, 1960, for infielder Steve Demeter. The Indians had landed Cash the previous winter in a seven-player deal with the White Sox. He never got into a regular season game with Cleveland.

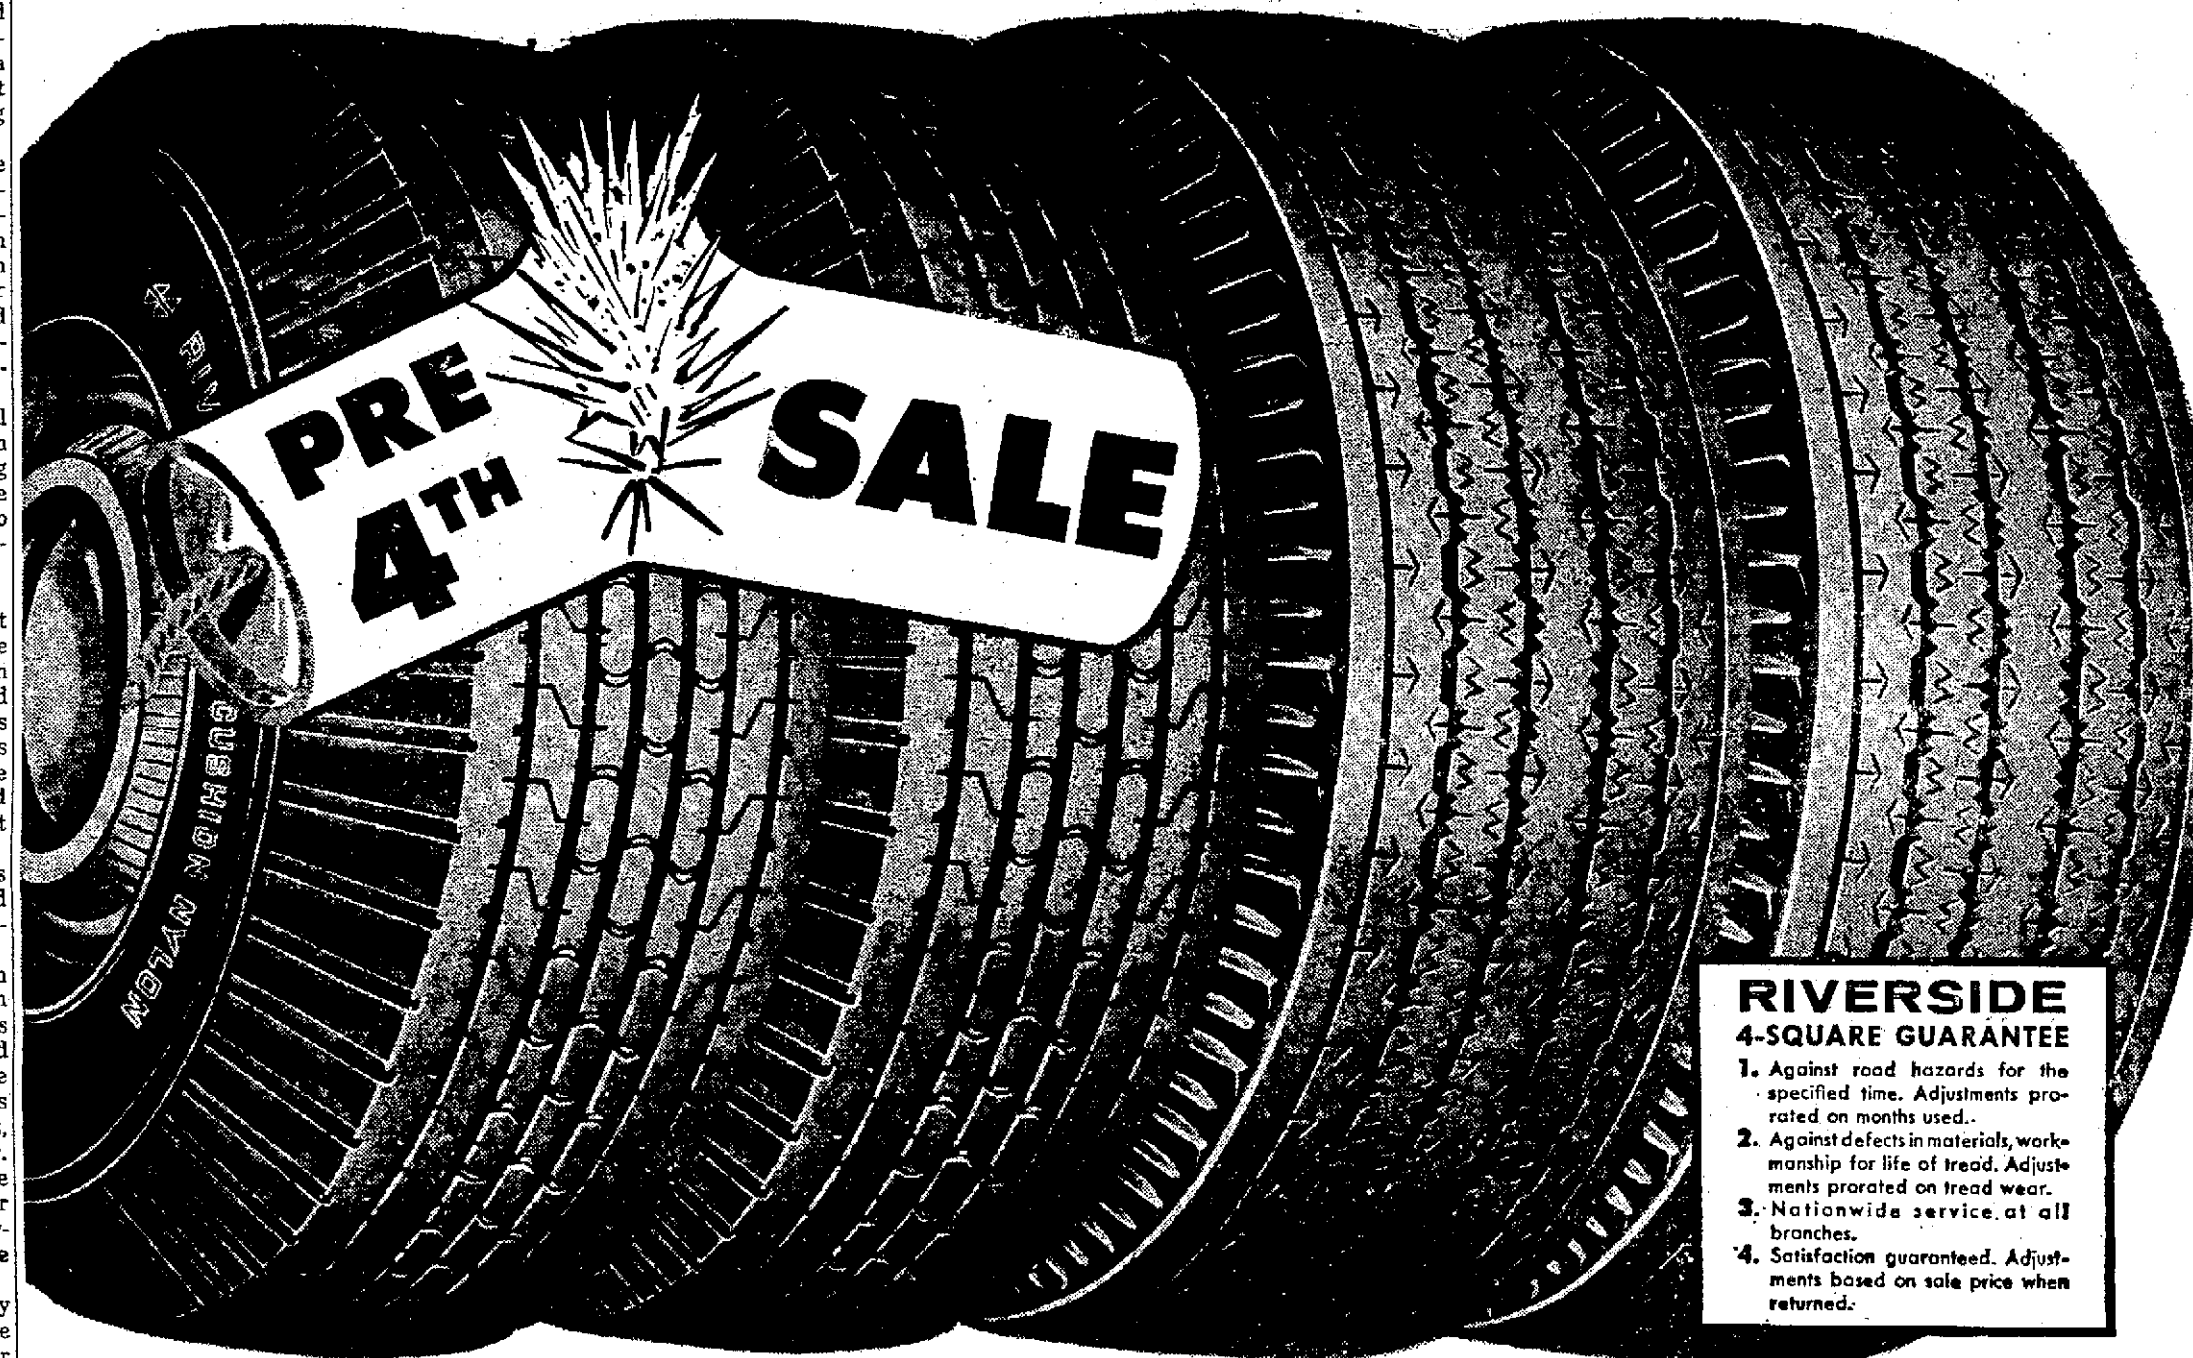

Veterans Billy Pierce and Early Wynn pitched the victories for the White Sox whose spectacular three-week surge has lifted them from last place to a fifth-place tie with Baltimore. Fifteen and a half games out June 11, the Sox now trail front-running Detroit by 9½ lengths. Nellie Fox, with three hits and two RBI, was the Sox batting star in the opener and Floyd Robinson, with four hits and 3 RBI, paced their hitters in the nightcap.

Howard Stars
Catcher Ellie Howard drove in four Yankees runs with a home run and single and offset the torrid hitting of Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew. The Twins' strongboy clouted a home run and single to account for half his teams' runs off winner Bill Strafford. It was the sixth homer in six games for Killebrew who drove in 15 runs and hit .591 during the span.

Mike Fornieles pitched four scoreless innings to protect Don Schwall's sixth victory in seven decisions since the later joined the Red Sox six weeks ago. Red Sox outfielder Carroll Hardy had a double and triple, scored two runs and drove in one. Gene Stephens, a former Red Sox outfielder, smashed a two-run homer to give the A's the split and furnish Bob Shaw with his for Kansas City victory since he came from the White Sox two weeks ago.

Ronnie Hansen homered in the top of the 14th and Jack Fisher survived a bases loaded situation in the bottom of the inning to feature the Orioles marathon victory over the Angels which consumed four hours and 42 minutes and 16 pitchers.

Jim Beatty Loses to Burleson, Accuses Foes Of 'Boxing' Tactics

Oregon Junior Wins AAU Title With 4:04.9 Mile

NEW YORK (AP)—Dyrol Burleson, 20-year-old Oregon junior, said today he'd rather win a mile race in 6 minutes than lose one in 3:48.

That about sums up his attitude on his disappointing 4:04.9 victory over Jim Beatty in the National AAU championships Sunday.

The race produced another chapter in the war of words between Burleson, who holds the American mile record of 3:57.6, and Beatty, 26, whose best is 3:58.

Beatty accused Burleson and his teammate, Keith Forman, of boxing tactics.

First Victory

"Nonsense," said Burleson. "I don't know what was going on but it takes two to box a man and that doesn't happen."

This was Burleson's first victory over Beatty in four meetings.

"I had no doubts about beating him eventually," said Burleson. "I knew I had time on my side."

But he said he was looking forward to teaming with Beatty in the meets next month against the Soviet Union, West Germany, England and Poland.

"I think the two of us will really do well and show the European runners that we can come through," he observed.

The first two finishers in each event in the 2-day championships at Downing Stadium, Randall's Island, were offered spots on the team.

The 19,220 spectators were drawn mostly by the prospect of a 4-minute mile. But Beatty and Burleson spent the first lap watching each other.

Keith Forman took over as the leader and hit the first quarter in 67.2. That eliminated all hopes of a 4-minute mile.

Burleson finally opened up just before the three-quarters and won by about 15 yards. Beatty started out after him too late, with less than 200 yards left.

"I ran a stupid race," said Beatty. "I never should have let them box me."

All told, six meet records were set, three Saturday and three Sunday.

Two of the three marks Sunday were upsets. Ron Morris of the Southern California Striders did 15-8 in the pole vault. Don Bragg, the favorite and Olympic champion, was 13th. Aubrey Dooley, the defending champion, didn't even make the final.

Beats Oerter

Jay Silvester, an Army lieutenant, got off a 105-8 loss in the discus, beating out defending champion Al Oerter and co-world record holder Rink Babka.

The other meet record during the day was set by Deacon Jones of the Army, who hit the tape in 8:48 in the 3,000-meter steeplechase.

Frank Budd of Villanova, who set a world record of 9.2 for the 100-yard dash the first day, could do no better than third in the 220 Sunday. Paul Drayton, his teammate, beat him in a wind-aided 21 flat.

Other winners Sunday included: Harold Connolly of the Striders in the hammer (213-6 1/2), Otis Davis of Eugene, Ore., in the 440 (46.1), Jim Dupree of Southern Illinois in the 880 (1:48.5), Don Styron of Southern Illinois in the 220 low hurdles (23.2), Laszlo Tabori of the Santa Clara Youth Village in the 3-mile (13:50) and Ronald Zinn of Chicago in the 2-mile walk (14:46 3/4).

The Striders won the team title for the fourth straight year with 120 points.

Spahn Puzzled Over Why Lefties Are Hitting Him So Solidly

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The "book" is going against Warren Spahn. The Milwaukee Braves' southpaw great is being bombed by left-handed hitters.

Long-standing baseball percentages dictate that a left-handed pitcher has an advantage on most left-handed batters. But Spahn is crossing up that theory as he strives for National League victory No. 300 at the age of 40.

Left-handed swingers George Altman and Billy Williams did most of the damage yesterday as the Chicago Cubs handed Spahn and the Braves a 5-3 defeat. The loss left Spahn with an 8-8 mark and still four victories shy of the coveted 300 mark.

Seven of 10 Hits

Altman and Williams combined for seven of the Cubs' 10 hits. Altman had an inside-the-park homer, a triple and a pop double to left, while Williams rapped four straight singles.

"There's no explanation for the reason left-handers are hitting me better than right-handers," Spahn said. "There's nothing I can do about it. Maybe my control isn't quite as good against left-handers because I face so many more right-handers. I don't know. It doesn't make any difference what I throw to those lefties. They've hit my fast ball, slider and curves just as much as my screwball."

Last Two Outings

In his last two outings, which he has split, Spahn has been combed by left-handed batters for nine hits in 17 official times at bat. Right-handers have managed only five hits in 41 at-bats.

Overall this season, port-side batters are hitting at a .302 clip on 32-for-106 against Spahn. Righties are hitting exactly 100 points under with a collective mark of 66-for-337. Last year, when he won 21 games, Spahn one team was using the ineligible player.

"I took a baseball glove and worked her over all right," Mrs. Horton said.

The kid league is sponsored by the Mount Park Baptist church. Mrs. Horton's husband, D. D. Horton, is a part-time preacher and a school trustee.

Mayville at Neenah (postponed, rain).

MENASHA — Jim Koerner's fifth hit of the game capped a comeback effort on the part of the Menasha American Legion baseball team Sunday afternoon and enabled it to defeat Winneconne, 5-4, in the last half of the 11th inning.

Koerner's hit drove home Ken Stumpf, who had opened the frame with a walk and had moved into scoring position on a passed ball. Koerner got his five safe blows in six appearances at the plate.

Fond du Lac continued in undefeated fashion with an 8-5 victory over Oshkosh, and rain prevented Mayville from playing at Neenah as the first round of action (excluding makeup contests), was completed.

The mound decision in the Menasha-Winneconne game went to Louis Hemauer, who relieved Roger Schmidt in the sixth inning. Schmidt had been touched for four hits and four runs and had walked four batters while striking out five.

Hemauer went the remaining distance, blanking the losers on four hits while fanning seven. He worked six innings.

After five innings of play, Winneconne held a 4-0 lead, but Menasha whittled away to erase the margin. They scored one in the sixth, two in the seventh and another in the eighth to tie the score.

Bob Olkiewicz took the loss for Winneconne. He was tagged for 12 hits, struck out 10 and walked four in going the entire 11 innings.

Felda's 2-Run Double Decides Game; Kleinke Hurls 6-Hitter

the fifth and sixth innings off Spahn, before Thomas hit a solo homer, his 14th, into the stands with two out in the sixth. That was the Braves' last offensive gesture.

Cardwell picked up his sixth victory against five defeats. Spahn, who needs only four victories to reach the 300 mark in his career, took his eighth loss. He has won eight.

The Braves nominated right-hander Lew Burdette (6-5) to open the three-game series in St. Louis tonight. The Cardinals planned to counter with Larry Jackson.

14 Base Hits

Schmidt was tagged for 14 base hits and in trouble frequently but flawless fielding by his mates got him out of trouble.

Kleinke gave up only six hits, including two by the Papermakers' Tom Vanderpas.

LC-K took a 2-0 lead with a pair of runs in the fourth but Fondy tied it with single tallies in the fifth and sixth.

The Papermakers moved ahead with a run in the top of the 11th but Dick Bestor opened the Fond du Lac half of the frame with a single, Dave Schwark slapped another single and Felda followed with his 2-run blast.

Nine Softball Teams Survive

Defending Champ Pond's Eliminated At Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — Eleven teams, including the defending champion, were eliminated in games played Saturday and Sunday in the Kaukauna Athletic Club's annual softball tournament.

Semi-finals and finals will be played next weekend, with the championship game set for Sunday night.

Defending champion Pond's Sports Shop, Appleton, was eliminated by another Appleton team, Subway Bar. Subway took a 6-4 victory Saturday afternoon, then was defeated by Al and Flo's, of Neenah, Saturday night. The loss also eliminated Subway.

Survivors in the tourney include: Lom's, Green Bay; Club Oasis, Oshkosh; Al and Flo's, Neenah; Werth Motors, Oshkosh; Riverside, Appleton; Shamrock, Kaukauna; Mill's 616 Club, Green Bay; Wayside of Belgium and Swan Club of DePere.

Saturday scores included: Lom's 11, Sports Center, Two Rivers 6; Club Oasis, Oshkosh 13, Peewee's of Two Rivers, 3; Guenther's of Fond du Lac 11, Beer Garden, Oshkosh 4; and Werth Motors, Oshkosh 4, Bleier's Bar, Appleton 1.

Sunday's results: Club Oasis 4, Northwestern of Fond du Lac, 3; Riverside of Appleton 6, McMa-

LL Co-Leaders Meet in Menasha

MENASHA — The two co-leaders of the Menasha Little League will tangle Tuesday night at Bayer Field. Wisconsin Tissue and Banta's, both with 3-0 records, face each other at 6 p. m. Central Paper and the Boxers will meet at 4:15. Marc Haberman, Banta's, tossed a 1-hitter at Central Paper Friday as he hurled a 6-0 victory. Haberman fanned 12 and allowed only Mike Walbrun to touch him for a hit. Walbrun singled in the first inning. Tim Resch and Preston Alvadj were the hitting stars as Gilbert's defeated the Boxers. Resch slammed a 3-run homer, and Alvadj drove in two runs with a triple as Gilbert's was a 6-3 winner.

New Books Tell Lore of Woods

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Summer is the time for exploring and adventures, for adults as well as children. Sometimes a book is the means of awakening interest in a new place to see or a new hobby to follow. Elizabeth and Edwin Seeman were tired of New York where they felt "out-raged to miss awakening spring in the woods, to be cheated out of gold and russet fall." They wanted to live in "a wild unspoiled place surrounded by the green of trees."

"In the Arms of the Mountain," is Mrs. Seeman's story of how they left the city for a beautiful lonely spot in the Great Smoky Mountains. They raised goats, chickens and ducks and kept a beehive, at the same time trying to keep on with their jobs, she as a designer, and he as a novelist.

Sad Experiences They had wonderful adventures, and some sad experiences too. They were always poor, sometimes ill and close to starvation. If you're a practical person, you'll get impatient with their too idealistic ambitions and prospects, but their story is full of humor, warmth and nature lore.

Virginia Eifert, familiar to some of us through her work at "The Clearing" each summer at Ellison Bay (she's in charge of nature work during part of the summer sessions conducted by the Farm Bureau), is the author of the recently published "Land of the Snowshoe Hare." She has written a number of other books, and is the editor of "The Living Museum," a news letter published by the Illinois State Museum.

This book is the story of a year in the "North Woods," somewhere in Wisconsin, and I wish she had named the locale definitely. From her descriptions of lakes, rivers and people, my guess is that it is somewhere in the Rat River-Outer Creek area of Marinette County.

Know Woods Mrs. Eifert tells what goes on in this wilderness through the year, and her descriptions of quaking bogs, evergreen forests and clear lakes of this glaciated area are beautiful and true to life.

If you know and love the north woods, you'll recognize her descriptions of places and things as old friends.

Many books on Alaska have been written in the last few years, and librarians will tell you they are among the most popular with their readers. A comparatively new one which I've enjoyed is Sally Carrighar's "Wild Voice of the North."

The "Voice" in Miss Carrighar's book is that of her malemute dog who, believe it or not, had extrasensory perception! Her book tells of her four years of study in Alaska, her research project being the arctic lemming. The author recreated an arctic tundra in the house in which she lived in order to find out the whys and hows of the lemmings' apparent suicidal drownings every few years.

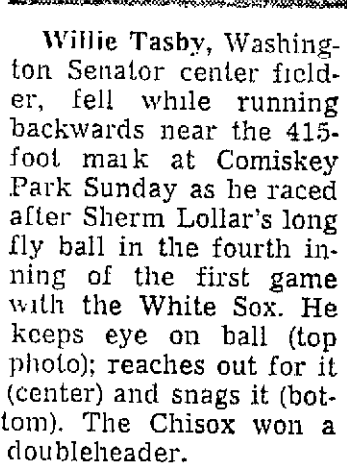

Former Book Miss Carrighar spent about 20 years in Alaska, and a former book, "Moonlight at Mid-Day," tells of her studies of the Alaskan Eskimos.

Would you like to know "How to Live in the Woods on $10 a Week"? That's the name of a new book by Bradford Angier, and published by the Stackpole Company of Harrisburg, Pa. From previous books written by the same author as well as his wife, you may know something about it.

This book tells such things as how to choose your north woods home, how to get started, building your north woods home, "free steaks and chops," which you hunt for, of course, canning meat; fruits and greens that grow wild, and how to survive a winter in the north woods. The Angiers have done it, in the Yukon territory and Alaska.

Many of us bird watchers never had any training in this hobby, we just learned "how to" by trial and error. Henry Collins has written a book to help beginners and veterans alike. It is "The Bird Watcher's Guide."

The book tells how to become a bird watcher, what equipment you will need, how to find birds and how to identify them. There are chapters on the best places, seasons and times to see birds; how to learn their songs, and how to attract them to home grounds. You'll also learn how to photograph birds, and how to band them. There are references telling of bird books and other helps to

Eisner Wins Junior Boys' Tennis Title

Diane Gilbertson, Barry Conway Lose in Finals

MANITOWOC (AP)—Brian Eisner, 15-year-old Manitowoc southpaw, won the junior boys title in the Wisconsin Jaycee tennis tournament Sunday and played on the championship doubles combination.

Eisner, who graduated into the division this year, defeated Tom Oberling of Waukesha 6-2, 6-0 for the singles crown.

Don Bleckinger of Oshkosh captured the boys 15 and under-vision by downing Barry Conway of Menasha 6-2, 6-2.

Barbara Mueller of Mequon beat Diane Gilbertson of Menasha 6-1, 6-4 to win the junior girls division. Her sister, Jackie, took the girls title with a 7-5, 3-6, 6-2 triumph over Barbara Barney of Wauwatosa.

Eisner teamed with Pete Grossman of Milwaukee to beat Oberling and Rick Billing of Waukesha 7-5, 6-4 for the doubles title. Jackie Mueller and Ann Klug of Mequon won the junior girls doubles with a 9-7, 10-8 victory over Barbara Mueller and Marge Balistreri of Milwaukee in a two-hour match.

Veterans Seek Cash Bonus if Sales Tax Passes

MADISON (AP)—The Wisconsin Department of American Veterans of World War Two and Korea has proposed that a cash bonus be paid veterans if the legislature enacts a state sales tax.

The department, at its annual convention here, supported a bill that proposes a $1 tax on automobiles and a two per cent surtax on incomes to raise funds for a bonus. As an alternative, it suggested that bonus money might be raised by delaying for two years the repeal of personal property taxes that could result from passage of a sales tax.

Carl Thiel of Menominee Falls was elected department commander at the closing session of the organization's annual convention Sunday.

Manitowoc Man Picked Head of Eagles at State Convention

WAUKESHA (AP)—The Fraternal Order of Eagles of Wisconsin wound up its 1961 convention Saturday with the election of Harold Wassink of Manitowoc as president. The women's auxiliary chose Mrs. Frances Secore of Beloit as president.

The Eagles organization picked Clarence Sullivan of Kaukauna, vice president; Clifford Lucke, Monroe, chaplain; William Menze, Madison, secretary, and Alvin Watson, LaCrosse, treasurer. Regional vice presidents named were Werner Wolfinger, Antigo; Roland Taylor, Milwaukee; William Corbelle, Green Bay, and Robert Schreier, LaCrosse.

Hilbert Setting for Ceremony

Trinity Lutheran Church, Hilbert, was the setting at 3 p.m. Saturday for the marriage of Miss Donna Mae Schlinsog and Wayne H. Lau. The Rev. Edgar Greve performed the ceremony which united the daughter of Walter Schlinsog, Granton, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Lau, route 4, Chilton.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Roger Frank, Wood Lake, Minn. The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Darol Behnke, Hilbert, was bridesmaid. Junior attendants were Miss Betty Kay Schlinsog, Granton, the bride's niece, Miss Jean Ann Bessert, Potter, niece of the bridegroom, and Christine Mueller, Hilbert.

Eldor Lau, route 4, Chilton, served his brother as best man. Darol Behnke was groomsman and guests were seated by Wesley Loose, Chilton, and Ronald Schlinsog, Janesville, the bride's cousin.

Dinner was served at the church parlors and an evening reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

The bride, a graduate of Granton High School and Concordia College St. Paul, Minn., will teach at Trinity Lutheran School, Hilbert. The bridegroom, a Chilton High School graduate, is employed at Chilton Metal Products Co.

The couple will live in Potter when they return from a honeymoon trip to northern Wisconsin.

Support Hose Ease Men's Leg Fatigue

Here's something that men have stolen from women: 100 per cent ribbed nylon support hose that look just like regular socks but serve to ease leg fatigue. These hose have horizontal ribbing to support the instep and shin, vertical ribbing for the back of the ankle and calf.

A wise wife might teach her husband to launder his own socks but this isn't really necessary because these support hose can be safely sudsed in a washing machine — if encased in a mesh or net bag.

Boy's Remarks More Significant When Made in Plain English

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I used to date a fellow who just returned after one year at an eastern school. He seemed very normal last Spring when he was a senior in high school and I was a junior. Now he uses foreign phrases in ordinary conversation like "ipso facto," "a fait accompli" and "persona non grata." Some of the kids think he's showing off. My mother says it sounds very classy.

Landers

Last night when he brought me home I said goodnight and he said "semper fidelis." I think this is going too far. Shall I tell him to stop trying to impress people?

—No Linguist

Dear No Linguist: I ran across this delightful verse by a Bryn Mawr College student. Spring it on your linguist and see what happens:

What's pat in the Latin
Or chic in the Greek
I always distinguish
More clearly in English.

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

While my husband is building up his ego he is tearing down our home. For three months he has been remodeling the living room—learning as he goes. Everything is so torn up we can't have friends in for fear someone will fall in a hole or hit his head on a suspended project.

Last week he disconnected the kitchen stove temporarily, and then couldn't put it back together. We had to eat out. He has installed outlets which don't work, and I'm scared to death he will electrocute himself. He knows nothing about wiring, but insists on fooling with transformers and converters. What do you suggest?

—Short Circuit

Dear Short: There's a great deal to be said for a husband who spends his spare time fiddling around at home instead of elsewhere, but your boy sounds dangerous.

Building mistakes can be repaired by a professional, but a serious wiring mistake might call for the services of an undertaker. Insist that for your peace of mind he lay off the electrical projects.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A word to Lucile who was crowing about the independence of the American female: I'd like to remind her that everything has a price—and sometimes the price is too high.

I'm a career gal, right in the middle of the battle of the sexes. All the men I meet assume that every female over 18 is "emancipated"—and therefore in favor of free love. Unfortunately, too many women like this assumption.

Promiscuity is turning a beautiful part of life into a sex automat. Women are the machines of the gams they ought to be. And both sexes are losing because of it. If this is the price of "freedom and equality" who wants it?—One Who Knows

Dear One: I agree. But one thing is certain. The "battle of the sexes" will never be won. There's too much fraternization with "the enemy."

Confidential to Mixed-Up: Don't press her. Be patient, and not too eager.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Our Children
Children Require
Outside Friendships

BY ANGELO PATRI
Children are endowed with curiosity, a most valuable quality of mind because it drives them to investigate life. With them, as with most of us, the pasture is greener over the fence, so they are bound, at one time or another, to investigate what goes on next door.

If the children are made welcome there, they will repeat their visits and come to enjoy a friendly footing with the family. Sometimes this annoys their parents who may be fearful of their bothering the neighbors or may themselves be jealous.

Jealousy should not arise in this situation. No matter how friendly children may be with a neighboring family, no matter how close a child can become to such a friend or relative, he still loves his mother and father and still cherishes his home.

Presents Best Side
Why does he go outside then? Something he needs does that, something he needs and finds in this family or personage. Mother and father are too close to the children. They know all about them, their goodness and their misdeeds, their strengths and weaknesses; the children, knowing they know, go to those who do not know and to whom they can show their best side, have an interested audience, be praised and admired. You know it is easier to praise a neighbor's child than your own whose faults show on his skin to his parents' anxious eyes.

Think about this when, next, a son or a daughter seems to care more for an outsider than for his own people. What is it he finds there that he does not find at home? Something there surely is, even if it is but an opportunity to show off.

Need To Expand
Children, especially those in their early teens, need a chance to show off, to talk themselves into feeling big. At home they would promptly be cut down to size, but in a friend's house he wins an appreciative, sympathetic audience.

Let the children widen their world by such friendships as long as the people are all that can be desired and are happy to see them come — and go. It is easy to take children's vagaries when one knows they will soon go home and relieve one of their restless presence.

Catholic Ceremony Unites Pair

The Rev. Joseph Matern officiated at the 11 a.m. marriage Saturday at St. Mary Catholic Church in Kaukauna uniting Miss Dorothy Jean Mathis and Richard P. Beschta.
Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mathis, 1401 Main Ave., Kaukauna, and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Beschta, 1010 Ridge Lane.
Mrs. William Bryers, Chicago, was her sister's matron of honor and Mrs. Jerome Van Der Steen, Kaukauna, another sister, was bridesmaid with Miss Joanne Beschta, Appleton, cousin of the bridegroom.
George Theyel Jr., Menasha, was best man and Jerome Van Der Steen and William Bryers were groomsmen. Roy Casey, Appleton, uncle of the bridegroom, and Clifford Mathis, Kaukauna, brother of the bride, ushered.
May-Nor Restaurant was the setting for the wedding dinner and Stroebe's Island Haven was the site of the supper, reception and dance. The newlyweds will reside at 300 E. Ninth St., Kaukauna, when they return from their wedding trip through the midwestern states.
The bride is a graduate of Kaukauna High School and works in the Kaukauna office of Wisconsin Telephone Co. Her husband, an alumnus of Appleton High School, works at Valley Iron Works.

Pair Weds In Double Ring Rite

Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church in Dale was the setting at 7:30 p.m. Saturday for the marriage of Miss Wilma Jean Gore and Charles John Christianson.
The Rev. Harley C. W. Tretow officiated at the double ring ceremony uniting the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Christianson, Larsen, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Gore, Dale.
Mrs. James Vonck, Appleton, was her sister's matron of honor and Miss Carol Gore, Dale, niece of the bride, and Miss Carol Anderson, Winneconne, niece of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.
Best man for his brother was Emory Christianson, Neenah, and groomsmen were Owen Gore, Fremont, brother of the bride, and Ronald Christianson, Neenah, cousin of the bridegroom. Gerald Gore and Emert Stacker shared ushering duties.
A reception was held in the church parlor.
The bride is a graduate of New London Washington High School and was manager of the Dale office of Appleton State Bank. Her husband is an alumnus of Neenah High School and is working at Kimberly-Clark Corp.
After a wedding trip through the western states, the couple will live at 840 1/2 Appleton St., Menasha.

How To Enrich a Monotone Color Scheme

That monotone scheme that made the room look so much larger—has it begun to look a little too plain? Now that it's time to replace a fabric here and there, or change the walls, perhaps the room can be enlivened without disturbing the one-color spacious effect. Three of the best ways are to provide more contrast of light and dark shades of the theme color, to add contrasting texture and to introduce carefully selected pattern.
Try an occasional brisk change to a very dark or light shade of the theme color—dark brown with beige, for example, keeps the monotone effect but does wonders to relieve a fade out look. Vary surfaces that are too much the same, with uneven-to-rough weaves for upholstery fabrics with smooth woods and flat painted walls, or textured wall coverings to change the walls. Or make it a patterned fabric for some of the furniture or for curtains this time—simple pattern in shades of the room's predominating color provides fresh variety without upsetting space-making close harmony, and this type of pattern is a specialty of new fabric design.
Mrs. B. E. L. "I have an efficiency apartment which I plan to refurnish in Italian Provincial style. The carpet is sandalwood, and since the walls are champagne color, I thought perhaps the new sofa should match them. What do you think of royal blue for two lounge chairs and touches of green for accessories? I'd also like a commode lamp table, a cocktail table between the lounge chairs, a long, low chest, and a round dinette table with low cane-backed chairs to place in front of the picture window. Enclosed is a floor plan."
A champagne colored sofa will blend into the walls, and if you use deep bright colors elsewhere, deep right colors are needed for a picture, pictures or other wall decorations to keep that area of the room from going blank. Contrasting pillows may also be needed. The sandalwood tones will be brought up from the floor by furniture woods, but probably should be brought higher by wooden picture frames or wall decorations, and an accent rug which repeats some of the bright colors will help break up the floor expanse. Your choice of furniture pieces are right or wrong depending on how they meet your needs and how their sizes relate to the room proportions.
Mrs. N. C. "We will have new sectional furniture in coral to go with the textured effect wallpaper in our living room, which is in shades of light brown on beige.

Towel Holder Has Unusual Feature

An unusual feature of a new towel holder is a spring-operated, self-adjusting pressure bar that holds fabrics firmly in place without slipping or dropping.
Made of durable white or pastel plastic, this "holdy" is easy to install on walls, doors, or kitchen cabinets. It's handy for drying towels, washcloths, dish towels, and hand-laundered "smalls."

Charlie Finds Statistics Grim as He Delves into Civil War Battles

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Just a century ago a dreadful blood bath was spilled over our infant nation. It was to roll through thousands of cities, villages and unheard of hamlets. Pleasant Hills, La., for example, was made fertile by the blood of 4,100 young Americans.

At Sallors Creek, Va., the grisly scored reached 8,180. In Marietta, Ga., there is a national cemetery in which there are interred the remains of 10,151 soldiers of both the North and the South. Of these, 2,963 are "unknown."

Never in the history of a quarrelsome world has a war been more dreadful.

Statistics are seldom attractive, but the numbers of dead, wounded and missing during the four-year conflict which we call the Civil War are grim indeed:

For the Union Army: killed in action, 4,142 officers and 62,

916 enlisted men.

Died of wounds suffered in action: 2,223 officers, 40,789 enlisted.

Died of disease: 2,795 officers,

221,791 enlisted.

Deaths by accident: 142 officers, 3,972 enlisted.

Murdered: 37 officers, 483 enlisted.

Killed after capture: 14 officers, 90 enlisted.

Committed suicide: 26 officers, 365 enlisted.

Executed by U. S. military authority: 267 enlisted.

Executed by Confederates: 64.

Died from sunstroke: 5 officers, 308 enlisted.

Died from other known, miscellaneous causes: 62 officers,

9,972 enlisted.

Died from causes not stated:

28 officers, 12,093 men.

Total deaths: 9,548 officers,

349,944 men — of which 219 were officers and 29,279 were prisoners.

With new discoveries of deaths and skeletons still being made after these 100 years, it is estimated that the number of dead in the Union Army alone has reach-

Confederates, Too

Figures for the deaths in the Confederate Army are unreliable, but it is blandly estimated that both armies lost an incredible total of almost a million young Americans.

So sanguine, so brutal, was the war between countrymen!

That conflict began when the South fired upon Fort Sumter

der of Gen. Kirby Smith's Confederate Trans-Mississippi fore-

s May 26, 1865.

But between those dates the war

raged, sometimes ineffectually,

sometimes with bloody success. The number of battles in which at least 500 men were killed or captured number at least

Battle Names

$6 Canary Has One Job In Life—to Die as Warning of Poison Gas

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Alphas,

a $6 canary, sings all day long,

flutters about his cage and awaits his assignment — to die.

His job is to protect scientists in a chemical laboratory at the Newark branch of Rutgers University from poison gas, which could leak out of their apparatus while they are engaged in separating and engaging stable iso-

Canaries are most susceptible to dangerous gases. If any such gas should escape, Alphas would give his life. That would be the signal for the scientists to leave the lab in a hurry.

State Board Designates Areas for Preservation

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON—A little known board of the state government has made a quiet start in the designation and protection of fragments of the Wisconsin native landscape for future enjoyment by the public and for scientific study.

The state board for the preservation of scientific areas has thus far designated 32 land tracts containing examples of native plant communities, mostly on existing public lands such as parks and forests.

Albert M. Fuller, Milwaukee public museum official who is chairman of the state agency, in a current report declares that the board intends to designate and dedicate for public use and protection at least 300 such areas. Many of them will be privately owned, and will require public funds for purchase and preservation.

"Unless Wisconsin has a vigorous, long-range scientific area acquisition program, hardly a trace of our native vegetation will remain in the near future," said the Fuller report.

Fuller said botanists have divided the native vegetation of Wisconsin into 21 major and 13 minor types.

The board hopes to be able to preserve a number of each type in the various localities of the state.

The legislature set up the state board for the preservation of scientific areas 10 years ago, but the idea was originally broached nearly a century ago by John Muir, the internationally famed Wisconsin-born naturalist who noted the need for refuge areas for plants and animals to prevent their extinction.

$650,000 Bond Issue Beaten at Winneconne

Residents Reject Borrowing Money for School Addition; Board Will Meet Tonight

WINNECONNE — By a 2 to 1 vote residents of the Winneconne Community School District Saturday rejected a $650,000 bond issue for addition of a kindergarten room at Winchester and 23 rooms at Winneconne.

Final vote was 350 in favor and 772 against the proposal. The vote at the Winneconne polling place was 243 yes and 578 no while at Winchester the vote was 107 yes and 194 no.

An anonymous letter sent out late last week to residents of the district is believed to have been a factor in the bond issue's defeat. The letter questioned the amount of room needed for the school expansion and suggested that only five or six rooms would be needed.

35 Per Cent Vote

About 35 per cent of those eligible to vote turned out for the special referendum.

Purchase of two sites adjoining the Winneconne Central School had been authorized at a special district meeting earlier this month. The school board tonight will meet with those owners to discuss securing options on their property.

The bond issue was to finance adding eight high school and 12 elementary classrooms, two kindergarten rooms, and cafeteria and kitchen space at Winneconne and a kindergarten in Winchester. The outlying 1-room schools would be closed under the expansion plan.

In the last 11 years the district has added 12 classrooms and has seen an enrollment growth from 760 in 1949 to 1,188 in 1960. Projected enrollment for 1973 will be 1,654.

Brilliant Man Fined For Leaving Accident

LITTLE CHUTE — Terrence F. Brick, 27, route 1, Brilliant, was fined $50 for hit and run driving when arrested before Anton Jansen, justice of the peace, Friday. Brick struck a utility pole on E. He told police he dozed while driving and ran into the pole.

Says South Started War For Political Reasons

Educator Tells State Historical Society Confederates Weren't United Until Sumter

PRAIRIE DU CHEIN — A Despitte the arguments of Confederate apologists, Dr. Current for Friday night charged the South with the moral responsibility for starting the Civil War.

Dr. Richard N. Current, now of the University of Wisconsin, told the annual awards banquet of the State Historical Society at Prairie du Chien that the Confederates struck at Fort Sumter in order to bring Virginia and the other slave-holding states firmly into the camp of the secessionists. "The evidence strongly suggests that political, not military necessity, required the firing of the first shot."

Jefferson Davis ordered Confederate batteries to open fire on Fort Sumter on April 12, 1861, because "at the last, the (pro-war) current was too fast for Davis to stand against it," Dr. Current asserted.

Among all of Davis' advisors, only his secretary of state, Robert Toombs, opposed overt military action, terming it "suicide murder."

Indeed, many Confederates saw as the greatest threat to their cause the possibility that the Republicans, under Lincoln's leadership, would back down and seek some kind of compromise with the secessionists.

Stephen Hurlbutt, sent by President Lincoln as a secret emissary to Charleston, reported to the chief executive early in 1861.

"Power is now in the hands of Conservatives — but a large, pro-war minority exists. These men dread the effects of time and trial upon their institutions."

Four Injured In Auto Crashes

Three Riding in Auto That Hit Bridge at 54, M

Four persons were injured in Outagamie County over a weekend heavy with state road deaths.

One of the drivers involved in a three-car crash Sunday was injured. Adeline Des Jardins, 34, 204 S. Weimar St., received cuts on the nose and knee and a bump on the forehead.

Outagamie County police said said a car driven by David W. Brown, 22, route 2, Kaukauna, was making a left turn when it collided almost head-on with the Des Jardins car on County Trunk Z between Appleton and Kimberly. Then a car driven by Manfred G. Spielman, 29, 820 Lynch Ave., sideswiped the Des Jardins car, police said.

Three passengers in an auto that hit a bridge railing at the intersection of State 54 and County Trunk M Sunday were hurt.

They are Osha Shepherd, 55, the driver, who received a chin cut, Louise Thayer, 70, who had facial cuts and bruises, and Lula Shepherd, 52, who suffered a cut on the arm. All are of New London.

The driver told Outagamie County police he turned left onto County Trunk M and lost control of the car.

1,000 at Dedication Of Mead Park Pool

Spectators See Swimming, Diving Exhibitions During Ceremonies

Hundreds of the families which will use it went to Appleton's new Mead Park Pool for dedication ceremonies Sunday afternoon.

Ideal swimming weather contributed to the setting for swimming and diving exhibitions and speeches. More than 1,000 spectators sat and stood under colorful beach umbrellas along the pool's edge and on the spacious sunbathing area.

The children began to use the new facility themselves today. Classes are conducted each morning, and the pool is open to the public from 2 to 6 and 7 to 9 p.m. daily.

Menasha Recreation Program to Include Trip to Braves Game

MENASHA — Details of the three summer bus tours sponsored by the park and recreation department have been announced by Robert Vanevenhoven, recreation director.

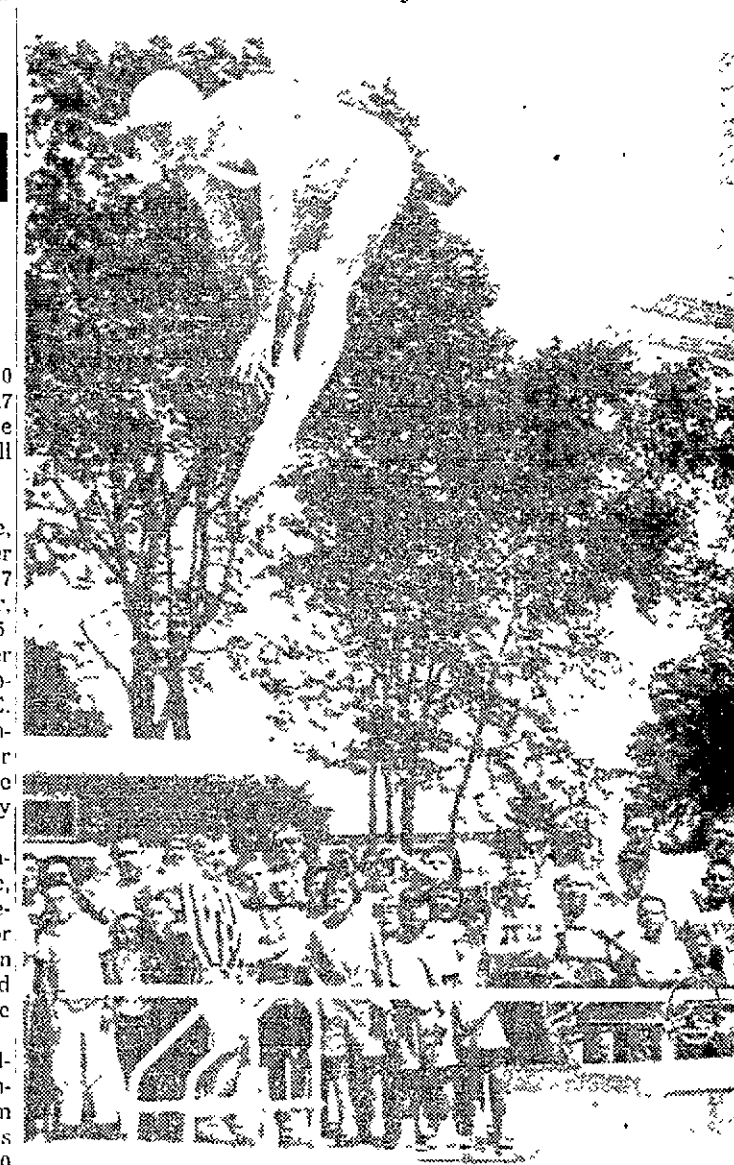

Registrations should be submitted by Tuesday to allow bus space procurement.

The first trip will be to Madison July 12. The group will leave the Memorial Building at 8 a.m. and return about 7 p.m. Children are to bring two lunches and $1.75. Sightings will be the Capitol, Truax State Historical Society and Vilas Park Zoo.

On July 19, the department will sponsor a trip to Baraboo to see the Circus World Museum, little circus and Devil's Lake State Park. Fee is $2. Transportation will leave at 8 a.m. and return about 6:30 p.m. One lunch should be taken.

The group will see the Milwaukee Braves - Cincinnati Redlegs baseball game and the Milwaukee Zoo July 27. Children should bring two lunches and $1.60.

Each youngster may be limited to two trips, because of the number wanting to go on the tours.

Children Watched in Envy as Jill Bylow demonstrated on the high dive of Mead Park Pool at the pool dedication Sunday. The pool was open for public inspection (but not swimming) after the program. Regular swimming begins today.

Ceremonies Dedicate 'Wingspread' as Center For Educational Work

Wingspread, the architectural gem designed by Frank Lloyd Wright as the "last of the prairie houses" was formally dedicated Saturday in Racine as an educational conference center for the Midwest.

The building was presented by H. F. Johnson to the Johnson Foundation as a setting for regional and national meetings devoted to educational events in the public interest.

Leslie Paffrath, foundation president, announced that a United Nations collection of books would be established at the building. A series of three lectures in the humanities has been scheduled for the winter season.

Admits Spending $28 Given Him to Buy Wedding Gift

OSHKOSH — A former Appleton man, Lee Halle, now of Milwaukee, pleaded guilty this morning of taking $28, given him to buy a wedding present.

Halle, who formerly lived at 719 W. Spencer St., Appleton, was to buy some cutlery for Mrs. Norma J. Bernes, who was married Feb. 26, 1960. He told Municipal Judge Arnold J. Cane this morning that he could not get the cutlery at the time and had expenses piling up, so he used the money.

Judge Cane postponed sentencing until 3 p.m. today. Halle said he had put $2 into the wedding collection.

Superior Girl New Alice-in-Dairyland

Rain, Hail Halt Parade At Contest

BY ROY F. VALITCHKA II Post-Crescent Farm Editor

MARSHFIELD — A new Alice in Dairyland has been named.

She is Carol Jean Anderson, 19, Superior.

The blonde miss was named at the climax of three action-filled days during which 20 young Wisconsin beauties vied for the right to represent this state and its dairy products for a year throughout the nation.

Saturday was no day for parades nor for girls riding in convertibles. Marshfield missed its biggest celebration of the three-day period because of a deluge of rain and half-inch hailstones.

Two Storms

The mercury plunged and skies darkened periodically throughout the day. Just before the 1 1/2-hour parade was to begin the city was hit by two separate storms. During the last, about a half-hour in length, hail piled up on the streets and cars looked as if they had come through a spring snow storm.

The Alice contestants waited for the first storm and then dashed for the waiting cars — hoping for better weather and a chance that the parade might go on. It never did.

More than 450 persons turned out for the announcement dinner at Columbus High School that evening.

Tears in Eyes

Each contestant walked the length of the gymnasium as a spotlight played on her.

Then Alice in Dairyland, Joan Engh, walked in to the song "Alice in Dairyland." Tears glistened at the corner of her eyes.

Each speaker during the evening tried to prolong the suspense of waiting. There were small talks and a speech on the climax of June Dairy month.

ROTC Cadets of St. Norbert Begin 6-Week Camp

Nine Fox Valley members of the Army ROTC unit at St. Norbert College, West De Pere, are among 1,900 cadets who began a six-week summer training program this week at Fort Riley, Kan.

The camp, which ends this year July 29, is a requirement for commission in either the regular Army or the Army reserve. Dennis Verbrick, Appleton, a June graduate of St. Norbert, will receive his commission July 28.

Other cadets in attendance with 29 of their classmates are John Coppens, Gary DeBauche, Stuart Jansen, and Richard Vande Hei, De Pere; Ronald Vandenberg, William Campbell and Thomas McAndrews, Kaukauna, and Paul Vanevenhoven, Kimberly.

The cadets will undergo training in marksmanship, intelligence, signal communications, combat engineering and field tactics.

A lone Policeman stood in a rain and hail filled main street at Marshfield Saturday waiting for a parade that never came. About 10,000 persons were caught in two big rain and hail storms that moved into the area. Hail, a half-inch in size, covered streets and lawns. Two Alice contestants, upper right, looked concerned as they stood in a lobby waiting for the rains to stop. Deanna Dushek, Waupaca, is at the left.

Ham Operators In Fox Cities Hold Field Day

Neenah-Menasha, Outagamie Clubs Conduct Drills

Ham radio operators in the Fox Cities area and across the country participated in their annual field day Saturday and Sunday.

The exercises were sponsored by the American Radio Relay League.

"Hams" in the Fox Cities area who participated included the Outagamie Radio Club and the Neenah-Menasha Amateur Radio Club.

Contacts started at 4 p. m. Saturday and continued for the 24-hour period until 4 p. m. Sunday. Both groups made contact with operators as far away as the east and west coasts and north to sections of Canada.

Plamann Park The Outagamie club had its portable generating unit set up at Plamann Park. The Neenah-Menasha unit was set up in a van located in Jefferson Park.

Points are awarded on the number of contacts made by each club. Because of the large number of participants in the program the point accumulations will not be known until later in the year.

The object of the program is to show how ham operators can set up a system of contacts through the nation without the aid of a local power supply.

Gets 30 Days for Beating His Wife

OSHKOSH — Roy T. Costello, 32, 433 Wisconsin St., Oshkosh, was sentenced by Municipal Judge Arnold J. Cane this morning to 30 days in the Winnebago County jail after Costello admitted assault and battery on his wife late Friday night.

He will be allowed to work out of the jail under the Huber Law.

Board Will Hear Huntley Principal

The Appleton Board of Education will meet at 7:15 Tuesday due to a meeting tonight with the Outagamie and Calumet counties school committees following a public hearing on the Red Star School question.

James Retson, Huntley School principal, will tell the board about a survey of parents on the new pupil progress report system in elementary schools and answer questions about the mixed grouping experiment at Huntley.

Professor to Head Society

Historical Group Elects Heselstine Of UW President

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN — Dr. William B. Heselstine, professor of history at the University of Wisconsin, has been elected president of the State Historical Society.

Dr. Heselstine's election was announced Saturday at the annual business meeting of the Society at Indian Isle, a resort near McGregor, Iowa. He succeeds Robert B. L. Murphy, of Madison.

Other officers of the society are John C. Geilfuss, Milwaukee, first vice president; E. E. Homstad,

Dr. W. B. Heselstine

Black River Falls, second vice president; George Hampel Jr., Milwaukee, treasurer, and Leslie H. Fishel Jr., secretary.

Fishel is also director of the society. Elected to the society's board of curators were George F. Kasten, Milwaukee; Thomas Barland, Eau Claire, and Prof. Frederick I. Olson, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

At Friday's annual awards banquet in Prairie du Chien, the $1,000 D. C. Everest prize for historical research was presented to Dr. Adolph G. Korman, a member of the faculty of Elmira College, Elmira, N. Y. Dr. Korman earned his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin.

Other awards went to the Albion Academy Historical Society, for preserving the last remaining building of the state's first educational institution; Harvey Huston, chronicler of the Thunder Lake narrow gauge railway, and to the Wisconsin Agriculturist and Farmer for series of historical articles.

Menasha Takes Honors For Traffic Practices

MENASHA — Menasha is one of three communities in Wisconsin and 31 in the nation to be cited for traffic safety practices by the Institute of Traffic Engineers.

Madison and Milwaukee share the honors, to be recognized by plaques presented the cities' mayors.

Spiegel's Wins Award

The manager of the Spiegel Catalog Shopping Center in Appleton, Mrs. Nellie Wells, was given the company's "Best in District" award for overall store performance. The award consisted of an engraved gold cup. The Appleton store is part of District 4, which includes all of Wisconsin.

The box was removed from the cornerstone during the current building project at the church. Contained in the box were items dating from 1894 and 1929, when it had been opened. The box will be resealed with additional items and reset at a later date.

Districts' Property Evaluations Released for Winnebago County

Superintendent Ott Gives Figures for Coming Year's Levies

OSHKOSH — School districts have been notified of their assessed and equalized valuations, Village of Winneconne, $5,164,700; Mrs. Maxine Ott, Winnebago County superintendent of schools, announced today. These valuations are used for determining the coming school year's levy of $25,202,600, up from $22,589,500.

The Menasha joint city and township district's equalized, or full, valuation is $81,875,800 for the city part and $23,978,900 for the township part.

The figures used for this year's tax levy were $78,089,000 for the city and $22,009,400 for the township. Spring Road school district has an equalized valuation for the coming school year's levy of $25,202,600, up from $22,589,500.

Tullar School District will have a valuation of $5,532,100 in the Town of Neenah while last year's valuation was $5,303,100 in the Town of Neenah and $36,500 in the Town of Clayton.

The Lakeview School District's value will be $9,722,200 in Neenah Township and $2,291,400 in Vinland Township compared with last year's figure for the levy of $8,818,800 in the Town of Neenah and $2,231,000 in the Town of Vinland.

Clayton School will set its rate,

The equalized values of those sections making up the Winnebago Community School District for the coming year's levy are:

Gillingham School District has a total full value of $1,563,100, made up of $833,100 in Vinland Township, $520,300 in Clayton Township and $209,700 in Neenah Township. This last year's valuation of $1,468,400 included $814,500 in Town of Vinland, $469,500 in Town of Clayton and $204,400 in Town of Neenah.

The Wolf River School District will levy its school tax on an equalized value of $2,428,000, which is up from last year's $2,318,200.

23-Year-Old Admits 3 Counts, Denies Resisting Police

OSHKOSH — Roger B. Allen, 25, 518 W. Seventh Ave., Oshkosh, denied resisting arrest but admitted disorderly conduct, not having a driver's license and driving an unregistered vehicle when arraigned before Municipal Judge Arnold J. Cane this morning.

Judge Cane postponed sentencing on the three charges until 10 a. m. Friday and ordered Allen jailed without bond. Trial on the resisting arrest charge was set for July 11 and bond was set at $200.

Judge Cane reminded Allen he had been in court only two months ago for speeding and not having a valid driver's license. Allen was arrested at 1 a. m. today by Oshkosh police.

Superior Girl Wins Alice Contest Title

She will represent the ADA in its promotional work throughout the state for a year.

Miss Winsome

Miss Winsome, girl picked by the contestants as most enjoyable, fun and happy, was Carol Olson, Madison.

Then, Miss Engh, tears streaming down her cheeks told the audience:

"To sum up my year, I believe this is the hardest thing to do. This year has been an education because I've seen many things and done many that I've only read about.

"To the winner this year, remember you are a salesgirl with a crown."

She had some advice for the new Alice too.

"Regard people as a stranger you have not yet met. The crown on your head is not placed there but should be worn in your heart."

There was a tense silence as Alice bent over and slowly, almost painfully removed her crystal crown. Miss Anderson was called and a new Alice crowned.

"If it hadn't been for my parents I wouldn't be in this position right now," Miss Anderson said. There was laughter from the crowd. "I think you know what I mean," she quipped. "I know I have great shoes to fill this year, but I'll try with all my heart."

Miss Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anderson, was a student at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., where she majored in music.

First Appearance

Other titles and contest honors she has won include maid of honor in United Commercial Travelers' Mardi Gras ball, senior princess Job's Daughters and president of Burrall Cabinet, Stephens College. She also has won numerous scholastic awards.

The new Alice will receive a salary of $4,600 a year. Her first public appearance will be Sunday at a pre-Fourth of July celebration at East Troy.

Girls from the Fox Cities area competing were Deanna Dushek, Waupaca; Harriet R. Hipke, New Holstein; Patricia Vanden Langenburg, Seymour; Rachel Wyszynski, Shawano, and Marilyn Dufek, Wittenberg.

As one contestant put it — there is something outstanding about every girl in the contest, but one had to win.

Stop Sign Theft Under Scrutiny

OSHKOSH — Removal of a stop sign at County Trunks M and MM near Winchester recently caused an accident, Sheriff Richard T. "Bud" Lovell said today.

The sheriff said that there had been many vandalism acts recently in that neighborhood and intensive investigation is underway.

He said in this recent instance, one of the parties involved knew the stop sign should have been there and stopped. The other party involved, unfamiliar with the area, went past the arterial, the sheriff said.

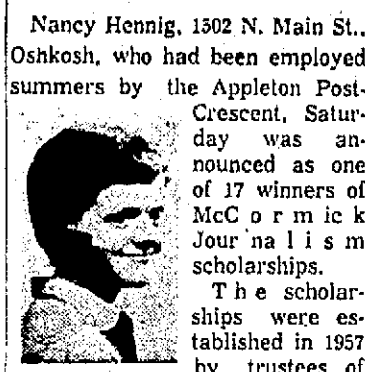

5 From Winneconne Injured in Accident

OSHKOSH — Five Winneconne persons were taken to Theda Clark Hospital in Neenah after a car driven by Mary M. Doro, 17, route 1, Winneconne, went off County Trunk G, a mile north of County Trunk G, and hit a tree at 7:24 a. m. Sunday.

Injured were Miss Doro, Thomas Doro, 14, Clifford Doro, 7; Frances Doro, 13, her brothers and sister, and Darlene Johnson, 15, Winneconne. All received bruises.

Oshkosh Student Wins Journalism Scholarship

Nancy Hennig

1502 N. Main St.

Oshkosh, who had been employed summers by the Appleton Post-Crescent, Saturday was announced as one of 17 winners of McCormick Journalism Scholarships.

The scholarships were established in 1957 by trustees of the Robert R. McCormick Charitable Trust in honor of the late editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune.

The $300,000 scholarship program is conducted by the Medill School of Journalism in cooperation with the Inland Daily Press Association and its 475 member newspapers.

"All 17 of the students receiving awards this year have given evidence of their interest in journalism, either through work on school newspapers or home talent newspapers," Dean I. W. Cole of the Medill school said.

Miss Hennig was graduated from Northwestern University this month and had been president of the Beta Sigma Phi women's journalism sorority in her senior year. During the last several summers she worked as a reporter and copy reader for the Post-Crescent in its Appleton and Neenah offices.

Nine of the award winners are high school seniors and the other eight were chosen for a fifth year of study at the Medill School.

Neenah Man Goes to Jail For Conduct

CHILTON — Max D. Wolf, 22, 649 Elm St., Neenah, was jailed in Calumet County after police said he became violent and abusive during an investigation of an accident. He was booked for drunk and disorderly conduct.

According to county police, Wolf's car left a Town of Harrison road at Faro Springs about 4 p. m. Sunday. The vehicle, police said, piled through a ditch, crossed a children's playground area and crushed some shrubs.

Wolf is slated for a court appearance today.

Withdraw Suit Against Neenah

NEENAH — Withdrawal of a suit filed against Neenah by Wisconsin General Railroad for the 1958 street work and water main installation was allowed today by the city.

The case was dismissed from Circuit court by Judge H. F. Arps after stipulation by the city.

The railroad contended it would not benefit from the work to have been performed in Harrison Street. The city subsequently dropped the improvement project.

School District Law Involves Questions of Neenah Urban - Suburban Relations, Finance

Six Elementary Units Must Make Organization Change Within Year

BY BONNIE BARSTOW Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"After June 30, 1962, all territory within the state shall be included into school districts operating high schools."

This seemingly simple school law, enacted two years ago, involves a wide range of questions on government finance, urban-suburban-rural relations and political power, the many people studying the law's effect on the Neenah area have learned.

Six northeast Winnebago County school districts whose teenagers go to Neenah High School must make some change in their school district organization in the year ahead.

These districts operate schools for kindergarten or first grade through eighth grade. They share with 32 other districts the cost of high school tuition charged by Winnebago County high schools for non-resident students from those 38 elementary districts, but they have no voice in the operation of the high schools.

The districts which may join with the city of Neenah to form a single district are Spring Road, just northwest of the city; Tullar, just west of Neenah; Lakeview, just south of Neenah; and Clayton, Gillingham and Mears, around U.S. 45 to the northwest, southwest and south-southwest, respectively of Neenah.

Spring Road has the biggest school and the biggest property tax base. There are 15 teachers and 315 children in kindergarten to eighth grade. Property in the district, which includes Kimberly-Clark Corp. Lakeview Mill and other industries, is valued at $25,202,600. Kimberly-Clark accounts for 56 per cent of the valuation.

Smallest School

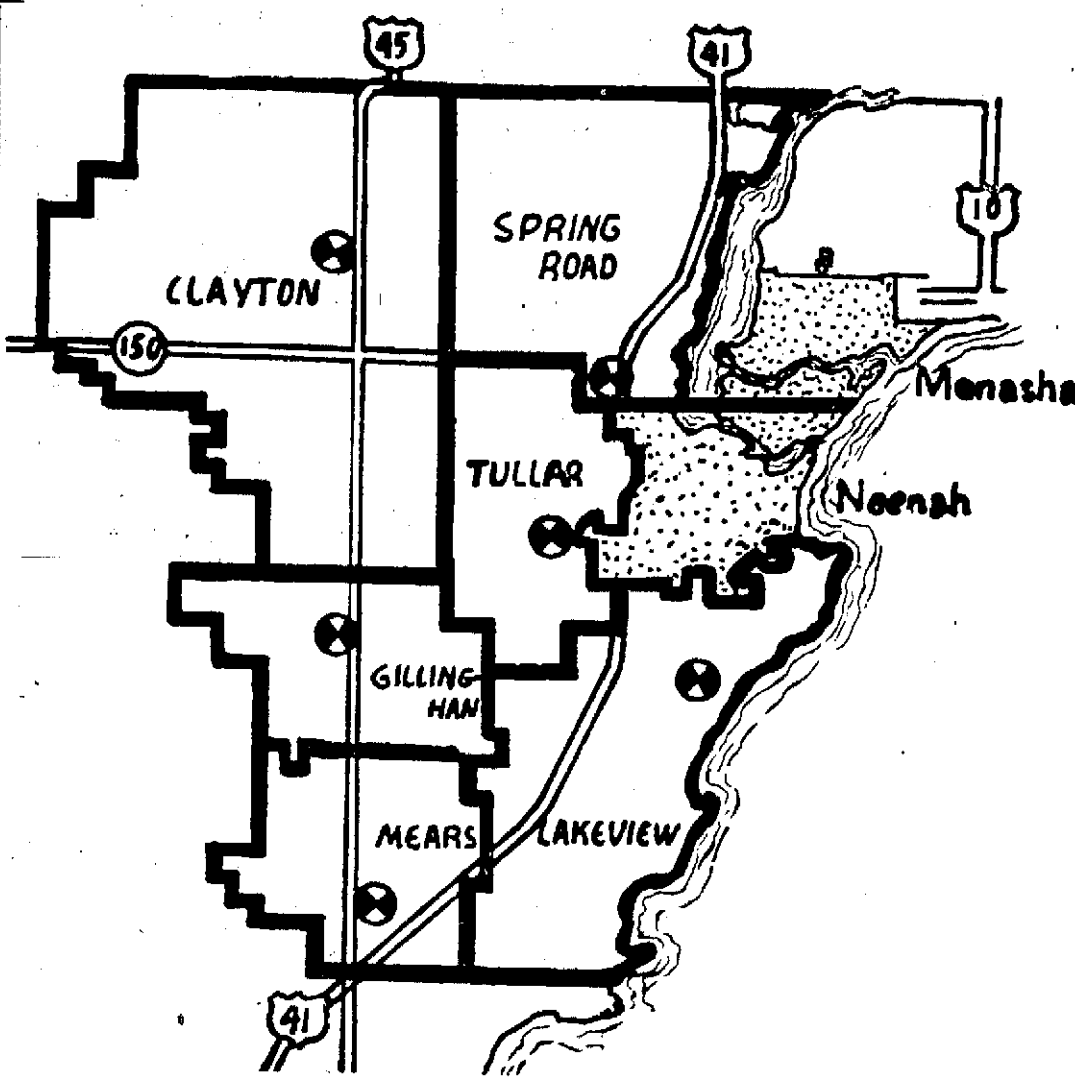

Mears is smallest of the six with a one-room school for 22 children from first to eighth grades and a valuation of $906,700. It has been sending children to three high schools — Neenah, Oshkosh and Winneconne — and may be divided into two or three high school districts.

Lakeview District has 283 children, including kindergarteners, taught by 11 regular teachers. Valuation is $12,013,600, including the Bergstrom Paper Co. mill on U.S. 41.

Tullar has 156 children, nine teachers, and $5,532,100 in equalized property value. Clayton has 116 pupils, four teachers and $2,259,100 valuation. Gillingham has 56 pupils, two teachers and $1,563,100 valuation. None of the three have kindergartens.

State law allows these six districts and other elementary districts in the state to join or form one of four kinds of districts:

1. The formation of a union high school district, which would operate only grades nine to 12. Elementary districts would continue to operate with separate boards, budgets and policies as they have been doing. The union high school district would have to build and begin to operate a

Post-Crescent Map

The Six Elementary schools around Neenah which must join a high school district by July 1, 1962, are shown on this map. Clayton, Gillingham, Mears, Spring Road, Tullar and Lakeview districts may join with Neenah, as the east side of the Town of Neenah has with the City of Neenah, or they may form a new high school district with Badger School, north of the area. Neenah and Lakeview school boards have recommended a Neenah rural unified district.

boards chosen at meetings of district residents.

Common School District

2. The formation of a new common school district to operate the suburban-rural schools and to build and operate a new high school. Tax levies and bond issues would be approved and

3. Attachment of the outlying area to the city of Neenah for school purposes. Residents of the attached territory would vote in city school board elections, and town chairmen from the territory would vote with the city council on school levies and bond issues. The arrangement is known as a joint city district.

4. The formation of a unified and their implications have been conducted by the League of Women Voters of Neenah-Menasha, an area study committee led by school and municipal officials of Neenah and the surrounding districts; a rural districts citizens committee, and groups from individual districts.

Observing Talks

Winnebago County School Committee, which has the power to order school district reorganization, has taken no action or stand on the Neenah area. It is observing the people's discussions and expects a petition for some form of reorganization to result before the July 1, 1962, deadline.

Territory not in a high school district by that date is placed in districts by the committee. Reorganization orders before the deadline are subject to possible referendum; those after the deadline can be appealed only to the state superintendent of public instruction.

The League of Women Voters, school boards of Neenah and Lakeview and the area committee have announced support for the unified organization. The rural committee is aiming its study at the possibility of an independent common district, perhaps including Badger district west of Appleton. Neenah Mayor Chester S. Bell indicated preference for the joint city arrangement. The union high school setup, which the state favors upon, has received little or no support here.

County Supt. Mrs. Maxine Ott is asking elementary district boards to bring the high school question up for discussion at annual meetings July 24. Voters are expected to cast informal ballots to guide their boards and the county in deciding how the issue will be resolved.

The many aspects of reorganization in the Neenah area will be summarized in future articles.

Plan Timber Hearings

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau MADISON — The state conservation commission's severance tax schedule for harvests from more than 2,300,000 acres of Wisconsin forest crop land will be reviewed at public hearings to be held at Wisconsin Rapids, Rhinelander and Hayward on July 18, 19 and 20.

Irrigation Law Extended for 2 More Years

State to Continue To Grant Permits For Water Diversion

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Unable to resolve the dispute between agricultural producers and conservationists, the legislature has extended for an additional two year period the "temporary" law governing the diversion of water from lakes and streams for irrigation purposes.

The 1959 statute was intended to be a compromise between outdoor conservation enthusiasts, including trout fishermen, and the increasingly active irrigation industry, and notably the potato producers, on the other.

It provides for permits by the public service commission upon a showing that the water wanted is surplus water, and that the riparians who may be injured by such a diversion are not objecting.

It also provides a veto power by the state conservation department for any permit that involves a trout stream by the definition of that department.

The public service commission under the law fixes the amounts of water that can be used, and the times during which it can be diverted. Such irrigation is subject to inspection by state officials.

The law also provides for an annual review of all permits issued since 1937 by both of the state agencies and limits any diversion to the amount that was permitted when the original permit system was inaugurated four years ago.

Irrigators who have had permits issued them during recent years appealed to the legislature this year to make their licenses permanent, arguing that such a security was justified by their investments. But natural resources interested objected, and the legislature settled for the extension of the 1959 act until January 1 of 1963.

Neenah Lions File In Oshkosh for Incorporation

OSHKOSH — Articles of incorporation of Neenah Lions Club, Inc., were filed Friday with Register of Deeds Bernice L. Fuller. William D. Farnum, 1910 W. Wisconsin Ave., Appleton, was listed as the registered agent.

Directors and incorporators are Clifford Ankerson, Ed Kadlec, Fred Krambs, Richard Lemke, Ray Meyer, Harold Metz, Francis Olson, Carlton Williams and Donald Harrington, all of Neenah, and Farnum and James Oates of Appleton.

Also filed Friday was an intention to dissolve State and Waugoo Building, Inc. This company has operated the building which contains the State Hotel and several offices. The building was purchased in 1959 by Oshkosh National Bank as site for a drive-in bank facility. It is scheduled to be razed this year.

Listed as officers are Erwin M. Spoo, president, William E. Crane, vice president, and Ben Gunz, secretary-treasurer.

Town Auctions

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Towns and villages have been granted the authority previously held by cities to regulate and license auctions and "closing out" sales under an act passed by the legislature and signed by the governor. Under the law 25 per cent of such sales license receipts would be required to be paid into the state treasury.

'Long Sam' Now Leading Normal Life as North Carolina Coed

BY LANE KERR
Greensboro Daily News Staff Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Whatever became of Dorothy Brown?

Perhaps you remember her better as "Long Sam," the nickname Dorothy acquired four summers ago when pictures of the long-legged beauty were in newspapers across the country. There was coverage in national magazines and she made an appearance on a national television program.

Overnight a 16-year-old girl with an eighth-grade education, but with natural beauty and a desire "to be somebody," became a celebrity in a "Cinderella" fantasy.

This was a girl taken out of school by her parents when she was just 14 so that she could supplement the sparse family income by baby sitting; a girl who lived in a shack without running water and where electricity had just been installed.

Lived in Shack
Dorothy Mae Brown lived in the dilapidated structure with her parents and six of her eight brothers. Two older sisters are married.

"You can't begin to imagine what it was like to live like we did unless you've experienced a similar existence," Dorothy says today.

But one August day in 1957 her fairy tale began.

A newspaperman from the Mooresville Tribune and a photographer saw Dorothy. Stories and pictures were published.

Wire services picked up the story of the 5-foot 9-inch "diamond in the rough."

Everything Happened
What has happened to Dorothy Mae Brown since then? Everything.

The girl who quit school at 14 is now a student here at Woman's College of the University of North Carolina where she is majoring in elementary education and expects to graduate in 1963.

When Dorothy told newspapermen four years ago that more than anything else she wanted an education, contributions from those who admired such an ambition were sufficient to set up a man since the early days of the trust fund at a Charlotte bank. "Long Sam" legend.

Tom McKnight, the Mooresville newspaperman who wrote the first story about Dorothy, was appointed her guardian, and she has lived with the McKnights and of her class. "All those things Mr. McKnight, Dorothy Mae Brown, famed 'Long Sam,' type when she lived in a rural home near Mooresville, N. C. in 1957, today is a junior majoring in elementary education at Woman's College of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She hopes to graduate in 1963. Dorothy gained national attention when Tom McKnight, Mooresville newspaperman, wrote the first story about her. He was appointed her guardian, and a trust fund, from contributions, was set up for her education.

and Mr. Gary (Kays Gary of the Charlotte Observer) wrote about me were true — the things about my home and schooling — although there were a lot of skeptics then and I suppose there are now," Dorothy said. "We did live in destitute circumstances; there were times when we didn't have anything to eat. We had no running water and the electricity was something new."

"My father worked only now and then. He was a mill worker but had been fired two years before. He worked some, cutting pulpwood. I had to quit school when I was 14 so I could work. I watched the children and worked around the house," she said.

Dorothy is not prone to talk about her parents. She seldom sees them and says she has written to them in the past but "they stopped writing."

'Be Somebody'

She was asked about a quotation attributed to her in 1957: "Mostly I want to be somebody."

She replied, "That's right. I knew then that some day I would leave home I was planning to join the Marines or Navy so that I could finish my high school in service."

"And now I'm a college student. I do all right with my studies. The first year was hard because I had chemistry and biology. I suppose I'm too much of a perfectionist. I want to get all A's but I have to realize that I'm not that smart so I just do the very best I can."

"I've made friends here at school. The girls couldn't have treated me nicer. Most of them had never heard of Dorothy Brown so it was easy to fit in with the crowd. I've met so many wonderful people. It's impossible to make you really understand how I feel because you can't realize what my background was before all of this happened," she said.

Thus, then, brings the saga of "Long Sam" up to date. Dorothy Mae Brown is a rising junior (she could finish college in three years but elected to "slow down and finish with my class") who likes the same things other girls do — dancing, music, sports and dating. A very average girl!

United States, Canada Personnel Meeting in Three-Day Conference

NEENAH — Pulp and paper operating management personnel of P. V. LeMay, Port Arthur, Ont., Marathon, division of American Can Co. are attending a three-day conference to study current and future production operations. Called by Russell C. Flom, vice president of Marathon's pulp and paper division, the meetings are being attended by managers of pulp mill, paper mill and woodlands facilities in the United States and Canada. Sessions being held here today will be followed by a Tuesday trip to Rothschild that will include a tour of pulp mill, paper mill, research and research tree farm operations. The conference will conclude Wednesday at Neenah. Discuss Many Topics Among subjects to be discussed are woodlands operations, production of pulp and paper, technical developments, maintenance procedures, industrial relations and future plans. Participants will include Owen E. Hanson, Marathon, Ont., vice president and general manager of Marathon Corp. of Canada, Ltd.; Claude E. Steeves, manager of the pulp mill at Marathon, Ont.; Charles L. Wagner, plant manager at Rothschild, Wis.; John E. Spalding, plant manager at Neenah, Ala.; J. V. Martin, Neenah-

Civil Engineering Students Learn Surveying on Job

A total of 84 students in civil engineering in the University of Wisconsin's College of Engineering are again "learning by doing" this summer in a surveying camp in the heart of the Chequamegon National Forest in Bayfield County.

The students apply the theoretical knowledge they have learned in UW classrooms during the regular school year to actual surveying work in the field at the camp sessions. Their work program includes computation, mapmaking, and report writing with consideration given to problems in topographic and hydrographic surveys, triangulation, route surveys, stream flow measurement, analysis of water power sites, and railways.

Laboratory Reports 185 Dutch Elm Cases

Power Struggle Cut Space Lead, Symington Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said today that had administration and "the constant power struggle within the Defense Department" cost the United States a two-year space lead over Russia. If money and authority had not been withheld, Symington said in a prepared Senate speech, the first U. S. astronaut could have taken his non-orbital ride into outer space two years ago. By the same token, Symington said, the United States could have orbited a satellite in 1956, a year before the Russians, and could have hit the moon in 1957, two years before the Russians.

Symington added: "If money and authority had not been withheld, this country could have landed a man on the moon in 1965, with a permanent outpost by 1966. "We have lost two years' time, but if we start now, as the President requested last May, we may make it faster, because the President now has set space accomplishment as a national goal."

Navy Decides to Retire Its Fleet of 10 Blimps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The navy today handed down a death sentence for its blimp fleet. It announced that eight of its 10 active airships will be deflated and placed in storage by Nov. 30. The two others will be kept in service until a year from now for research and development work. The decision was made because of a shortage of funds and personnel "combined with the increasing capability of helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft to perform all necessary anti-submarine and airborne early warning functions," the announcement said. The question of whether to end the colorful blimp era in navy history had been under discussion for some months. A group of old-time balloonists, led by retired Vice Adm. C. E. Rosendahl, had fought the proposed action.

Report Valuations In Calumet County

Chilton School District Leads With Value of Over $19 Million

CHILTON — The Chilton School District, with a valuation of $19,202,800, will again have the largest tax base of any high school district in the county, revised valuation standards prepared by the State Department of Public Instruction show.

Budgets to be adopted at annual meetings in July will use the new valuation to determine tax rates.

The new valuation of the Chilton district is $295,500 higher than last year. The city of Chilton constitutes the greatest share of the district's worth, $12,179,900.

District Values
Full value of town areas within the district's boundaries include Chilton, $2,677,100; Charlestown, $2,368,700; Stockbridge, $1,212,100; Rantoul, $572,100; Brothertown, $138,000, and New Holstein, $54,100.

Besides holding the second largest valuation in Calumet County — $17,906,000 — the New Holstein District has during the year enjoyed the greatest growth in value, $1,135,700.

The valuation hike in the city of New Holstein brought about by recent industrial expansion reflects directly on the school district's valuation toward which the city contributes $12,788,900.

Value of the portions of towns which comprise the remainder of the district are New Holstein, $4,029,400; Charlestown, $667,700; Calumet, $46,700; Marshfield, $58,500, and Russell, $314,800. The latter three are in Fond du Lac County.

Brillion Value
The value of the Brillion District, third largest in the county, at $10,897,900, is $36,900 lower than it was a year ago. The diminishing tax base is attributed to a $16,000 decrease in valuation of the city of Brillion and a similar situation in the portion of the Manitowoc County Town of Rockland which is part of the district.

Brillion District component values are Brillion city, $8,609,500; Brillion Town, $1,237,200; Rantoul, $245,300; Rockland, $650,000, and Maple Grove, $155,900, set at $7,788,900.

Up some $238,000 is the valuation of the Hilbert District newly. It is comprised of Hilbert Village, $2,323,900, and portions of the town of Woodville, $2,578,100; Chilton, $1,402,700; Harrison, $528,

Thorp Finance, C.I.T. Cancel Talk of Merger

THORP, Wis. (AP)—The Thorp Finance Corp., has called off a proposed merger with the C.I.T. Finance Corp. of New York. Directors said they felt it would displace many Thorp employees and might lead to some difficulties in transactions.

Thorp has approximately 4,000 stockholders, mostly in Wisconsin, and maintains 67 offices in this state and 10 in Minnesota, employing some 500 persons.

Merger discussions had been in progress for more than two months. It had been proposed that Thorp become a subsidiary of C.I.T. with the latter firm paying $20 million for Thorp interests.

4 Servicemen Die In Avalanche at Greenland Base

STEWART AIR FORCE BASE, N. Y. (AP) — An avalanche near a Greenland Air Base killed four sightseeing servicemen, the Air Force reported today. Nine others were injured, none seriously.

Maj. Gen. Dale Smith, commander of the 64th Air Division of the Air Defense Command, said here that the accident happened yesterday at 2:30 p.m. (EDT) near Sondrestrom Air Base, which is on the West coast of Greenland near the Arctic Circle.

Sightseeing tours, carefully organized, have been conducted to Russell glacier near the base for several years, he continued, and until now had been considered safe.

This time a 200-foot in diameter chunk of the glacier exploded while a party of 35 was 500 feet away, taking pictures and sightseeing.

General Smith said some of the fleeing victims were hit by flying ice. The avalanche also caused a tidal action in the Watson River, which overflowed and caught others.

Tipsy Drivers Pay $100 Fines

Kaukauna Man, Shiocton Resident Lose Driving Rights

Two drivers lost the right to drive for one year and paid $100 fines today. They are Reinhold A. Gruenstern, 43, route 1, Kaukauna, and Clifford C. Miller, 39, Shiocton.

Gruenstern appeared before Anton Jansen, justice of the peace. He was arrested by Little Chute city police about 9:10 p.m. Friday when the car he was driving struck the rear of a car turning into a driveway on E. Main St., Little Chute.

Gruenstern tested .20 on the drunkometer. A reading of .15 is considered evidence of intoxication.

Miller was found guilty in Municipal Court today. State police arrested him Jan. 13. Police said he drove erratically on U.S. 41 north of Appleton. Miller refused a drunkometer test.

Man Charged With Speeding Says Court's Prejudiced on Case

MENASHA — The attorney for John W. O'Leary Jr., 17, 400 11th St., Neenah, today filed a writ of prejudice against Police Justice Arthur J. Ales, who was to have heard a speeding charge case.

Ales has approved the transfer to Justice of the Peace Allen B. Adams' court.

O'Leary was arrested June 10 and charged with driving 42 miles an hour on Appleton Road. He denied the charge June 12.

Rural Menasha Couple Divorced

OSHKOSH — Alma B. Dombrowski, 46, route 2, Menasha, was granted a divorce from Frank I. Dombrowski, 48, route 2, Menasha, by Circuit Judge H. F. Arps. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment.

They were married June 1, 1937, at Neenah and separated Nov. 4, 1960. Both of their children are not affected by the decree. A property settlement was arranged.

Bullet Hits Boy Playing With It

Three boys experimented with a rifle cartridge Saturday evening and one of them was taken to a doctor.

James Johnson, 18, Oneida, and his brother Steven, 15, and William Leeman, 16, route 1, Oneida, took the lead bullet out of the cartridge, inserted a home-made fuse and lit it. The shell exploded and fragments hit James in the leg and face.

The leg wound required three stitches and the face wound two.

Hearing Set On Grand Chute Sewage Issue

Board of Health to Hear Testimony on Sanitary District

A hearing has been scheduled with the State Board of Health at Butte des Morts Golf Clubhouse at 10 a. m. July 7 to hear testimony for and against the Town of Grand Chute's establishing a sanitary district.

The hearing stems from action taken in January when the Town Board appointed a five-man citizen's committee to work for formation of a sanitary district. The committee's formation came after a state request that the town begin action to clean up an acute sewage problem in the Mud Creek area.

The State Board of Health says complaints have been received that no local action has been taken to correct the situations producing the sewage problem.

Testimony at the hearing will cover reasons why sanitary treatment should be provided and the need for providing a sanitary district in that area.

An order will be made by the Board of Health after the hearing to provide necessary sewerage services.

Winners Named In Pet Contest

KIMBERLY — Winning first place awards in the recreation department's pet show at Main Park last week were Judy VadenBoogaard, Carl Hooyman, Neil Buchberger, Jane Nirschl, Mary Vancenhoven, Kevin McSorley, Larry Klarner, Nancy Van Hout, Donald Can Hammen and Sally Vosters.

Van Daalwyck Park winners were Colleen Breir, Michael and Steven Timm, Mark Langenheisen, Cindy Van Vreede, Patsy Schmeltzer, David Asman, John Schultz, Judy Hofkens, Donna and Vicki Weyenberg, Gary and Gina Vander Zanden and Nancy Langenheisen.

Checker tournaments and zell-ball tournaments will be held this week. The handicraft project is working with paper plates. The special event for 6:30 p.m. Wednesday will be a hat contest. Story hour will be 9:30 a.m. Thursday at all parks and the movie for 9:30 a.m. Friday will be "Angels in the Outfield."

Store Owner's Kin Accused of Aiding In Holdup Plot

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The brother-in-law of the owner of a department store that was robbed of $3,000 to $5,000 a week ago has been accused of aiding in the hold-up plot. He is free on $5,000 bond pending trial July 7.

Charged with robbery, Sidney Litsky, 55, assistant manager of the More-Way store owned by his brother-in-law Morry Silberman, was arraigned in the district court Saturday. He denied any knowledge of the robbery but police said his handwriting matched that of a map of the store found in the possession of one of two men who

Fireman Injured

Farm Home Burns Near Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — Fire destroyed a rural farm home near here Sunday afternoon. Damages are estimated at $15,000. A Clintonville rural fireman, Harold Rekitzke, is hospitalized in Clintonville Hospital for injuries received while fighting the fire.

The blaze destroyed the Merlin Conrad home, five miles northwest of here. Rekitzke was injured in an explosion in the house as he was climbing up a ladder. He received cuts on the head and arm.

Conrad and his family noticed the fire when they were returning home after being away for the afternoon. Conrad called the Marion Fire Department. The Clintonville Rural department arrived later and stayed at the scene until 1:30 a.m. Monday.

Firemen were hampered by the lack of water. Clintonville firemen used city trucks to haul water to the scene. The Marion department used bulk tanks.

Firemen and volunteers managed to save only a few pieces of furniture.

Writ Could Bring Worse Fall Strike, Curran Declares

UNITY HOUSE, Pa. (AP)—The leader of one of the unions involved said today that a government Taft-Hartley injunction to stop the current maritime strike could lead to a much worse shipping walkout next fall.

Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, discussed the 11-day strike with fellow members of the AFL-CIO Executive Council at their summer session here.

President Kennedy invoked the Taft-Hartley law's emergency provisions today, setting in motion the machinery to obtain an 80-day court injunction to halt the shipping tieup.

Before Kennedy acted, Curran, whose union is one of six involved in the strike, commented: "Sailors can't be pushed around; we might hit them twice as hard after an injunction expires."

Curran at the same time said that if an injunction is obtained, his union will obey it and go back to work. He said, however, it was only postponing the day when the strike issues must be settled in negotiations with the shipowners.

Endorse Bill To Aid Mental Training Homes

Finance Unit Okays
Request for State
To Pay 40 Per Cent

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON—The legislature is apparently prepared to launch a significant new program of help for mentally retarded children and their parents by providing subsidies to localities for the operation of day care centers for such disabled youngsters.

The legislative finance committee, which usually turns a skeptical eye upon requested spending for new service programs, has endorsed in a unanimous vote an appropriation bill that will be sufficient to pay 40 per cent of the costs of such home-town training centers in four localities during the next two years.

Such care can be provided at a cost of about $300 a year in the home communities, which is a small fraction of the cost of maintaining a child in one of the state colonies for the mentally defective, the legislators were told.

Severely retarded, those with intelligence below 35 points, would be served at such local centers. Virtually all of them would otherwise be sent to the state colonies, explained Harry K. Spindler, executive secretary of the state advisory committee on mental hygiene, which sent the legislature a group of bills it claimed could avoid the construction of a fourth state colony at a cost of $10 million or more.

Another bill would permit the state to pay local tuition charges for mentally retarded children in private foster homes who are enrolled at special local school classes for mentally retarded.

The state has provided subsidies for the operation of such special classes, but they are not sufficient to cover all of their relatively high costs.

There are now organized day centers for severely retarded children operating on an experimental basis in Milwaukee, Sheboygan, Madison and LaCrosse.

Parent groups, effectively organized into local clubs and a state-wide league, are eagerly

Make Useful Flower Bowl From Tin Can, Wire Mesh

BY CAPPY DICK

Want to make something useful for your home? Try a flower bowl made from a shallow tin can, a piece of chicken wire and a paper doily. The completed bowl will look like Figure 2. Figure 3 shows how it will hold flowers upright. Mother will agree that it makes a suitable centerpiece for the dining room table.

Under the aid program the locality would be required to provide the facilities, hire teachers and other staff and pay 60 per cent of the operations costs. The state would provide 40 per cent, on an annual reimbursement basis.

Wire Mesh Holds Flowers

can, a piece of chicken wire and a paper doily. The completed bowl will look like Figure 2. Figure 3 shows how it will hold flowers upright. Mother will agree that it makes a suitable centerpiece for the dining room table.

For the bowl I made, I used a large tuna fish can, but any shallow can will do. Remove the entire top with a can opener. Dull the edge of the sides with a file so no one's fingers will be cut in handling the flower holder. Remove the label and paint the inside and outside of the can with two coats of white enamel (Figure 1).

Get a piece of chicken wire of the finest possible mesh. If you live on a farm or have a relative who does it will be easy to get a piece; otherwise you may have to go to the hardware store and buy a piece about a foot square. Cut the mesh to the same size as the round paper doily.

The doily is to attach to the wire, but before you do this, cut the center out of the doily (see Figure 2). With white threads tie the remaining part of the doily to the wire, tying at half a dozen places. Apply two coats of enamel to the doily and the wire, painting both top and bottom.

All that remains to do is attach the doily and wire mesh to the top of the can. This is done with paper clips or bobby pins. The tin can will hold water. The stems of the flowers are inserted in the openings of the mesh where they will remain upright, forming an attractive bouquet.

President Should Cut Out 'Activity' Needless Appearances, Talks Limit Time for Thought, Study

BY WILLIAM S. WHITE

Washington — John F. Kennedy has decided, and none too soon, to begin cutting away some of the wholly unnecessary burdens of the presidency which foolish custom has created.

The immediate reason for Kennedy's sharp restriction of what used to be an activity of almost perpetual motion has been trouble with his back. Beyond all this, however, the plain fact is that he has felt compelled to re-examine his whole policy of making himself available almost anywhere upon almost any kind of request for almost any kind of reason.

Time for Study
The upshot is that even after he has recovered from his present disability, he is going to be much slower about accepting invitations and so give himself much more time for study and reflection.

With ironic fitness, the President's present painful back strain was brought on by a characteristic example of the nonsensical exertions which have come to be demanded of any president to support an absurd legend that he is, after all, just one of the boys.

Some weeks ago in Canada Kennedy felt obliged, though his back for years had been weak, to dig up a good many spadeful of earth in a tree-planting ritual. The result was a persistently aching back. For a further irony his Canadian friends undoubtedly would have been more than glad to spare him. They, too, were simply caught up in the cornerstone laying or clambake cliché.

Cancels Plans
Now, within a single recent 24-hour period, the President has canceled plans to dedicate an airport in Los Angeles, to attend the annual "stunt night" of the Women's National Press Club here, and to address the Governors' Conference in Hawaii.

Several other like appointments had previously been struck off the presidential calendar. Though the disappointment of his potential hosts is understandable, the truth is that none of these proposed appearances was vital to the safety of the republic. None of these journeys was absolutely necessary.

Will Have Difficulty
Kennedy was able to get away with calling them off because of his partial disability. But the point is that he should be able in the future to avoid such energy-using enterprises, back or no back. Still, he will have difficulty. For we have mostly gotten into the habit of treating our presidents not only as public leaders but also as public utilities, on public call more or less like street cars.

To many measure presidential performance simply by the degree of churning and visible "activity" of the president. To this correspondence, it always seemed petty in the extreme that such a muttering and clacking went on over the fact that Dwight Eisenhower as president liked to play golf.

Control Private Habits
Many people want to control not merely a president's official activity but also his private habits. The whole business amounts to an intolerable intrusion on the personal rights of a man who is a private human being as well as a public servant.

One would have thought that whenever Eisenhower was "on the golf course" he was letting down the country. No such view could have possibly been taken unless one assumed that a president was a hired hand at so much an hour and thus that, when he was "playing golf," he was somehow defrauding the time clock.

Nobody expects a corporation executive, a lawyer, or even a labor leader to drop everything and rush off to some chicken croquette luncheon to address the master barbers association. Nobody supposes that such a man's value is measured so much by physical movement as by the exercise of his mind. Why should any president of the United States be put in lesser regard—particularly since the 40-hour week has never been extended to that office?

Approves Purchase of Williams Bay Facility
MADISON (AP)—A bill to appropriate $175,000 so the state can purchase the former Air Force radar installation at Williams Bay has been signed by Gov. Gaylord Nelson.

State Welfare Department plans for using the facility for a penal institution to help relieve overcrowded conditions at the reformatory near Green Bay will be taken up at public hearings and considered by the Legislature.

Winnebago 4-H Plans Contest

OSHKOSH — The annual home economics judging contest and demonstration school for Winnebago County 4-H Club members will be Tuesday.

Members in the southern part of the county will meet at 9 a.m. at Omro High School and those in the northern part of the county at the same time at Allenville Grange Hall.

Classes are planned in home furnishings, clothing, foods and food preservation. Demonstrations will be given at the afternoon session.

Postmen Ask Shorter Day in Hot Weather

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Florida postmen have proposed that their work hours be shortened when the temperature gets above 90 degrees.

"A letter carrier suffers unusual hardship when the temperatures in the summer are 90 degrees or more," said a resolution approved at the 41st annual convention of the Florida State Association of Letter Carriers.

It suggested that on any day the temperature is above 90, work be limited to six hours—with no reduction in pay.

The resolution will be submitted to the national convention later in the year.

Union Charged With Being Unfair to Its Own Employees

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board charges the International Ladies Garment Workers Union with being unfair to a group of its own staff employees.

The NLRB, in its complaint issued last week, said the 425,000-member union used dismissals, threat of dismissals and other reprisals against employees who favored a union within a union.

Charges before the NLRB had been brought by the Federation of Union Representatives, which is seeking bargaining rights for

Hearing Wednesday On Attaching School Area to Kaukauna

Outagamie County School Committee has scheduled a public hearing for 8 p.m. Wednesday in Kaukauna High School Library on a petition for attachment of about four square miles of Oak Grove School District to Kaukauna for school purposes.

The area includes the one-room school building. The reorganization action would extend the Kaukauna school district to the northeast. If it is approved, all of the Town of Vandenberg will be in the Kaukauna district.

Top Czech Puppeteer Kept From Limelight

Informants Claim Reds Attempt To Divert Movie Maker's Career

BY JOHN FIEHN
PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) —The Walt Disney of the Communist world appears to be slipping into oblivion.

Informants claim that Jiri Trnka, creator of the world famous Czech puppet movies, is being sidetracked by the country's Communist rulers.

And officials admit that the 49-year-old Trnka is pulling out of the film business to concentrate on illustrating fairy-tale books.

No Politics
Persons who know the heavy mustached puppet film artist say Trnka's troubles stem from the fact that he won't inject politics into his works.

"I can only do what I believe in," friends quote him as having told officials.

Trnka, painter, stage designer and book illustrator of considerable standing, entered films in 1945.

Venice Film Award
Three years later he scored his first major hits with a filmed interpretation of Hans Christian Andersen's "The Emperor and the Nightingale" and "The Czech Year," which received a gold medal as the best puppet film at the 1948 Venice film festival.

In all, he produced 10 puppet films, including "The Good Soldier Schwejk," depicting the humorous exploits of an Austrian soldier in World War I, one of his best full-length puppet features.

Trnka, his close friends say, has been inspired in a way by Walt Disney whom he admires as the greatest cartoon film maker of all time.

More Depth
"But I wanted to be different from Disney," he is quoted by friends. "I wanted to go more into depth. I wanted to be more plastic than cartoon. Cartoons are not as lively as puppets."

Communist Czechoslovakia operates four puppet film studios. Trnka is nominal head of one of them, but has been unofficially succeeded by his pupil, Stanislav Latal.

Latal calls Trnka "undoubtedly

New Summer Replacement Has Tired Plot

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, using their own imaginative material, are a superior comedy team. But, unless they were satirizing TV, they would never have written for themselves the first episode of their new series.

"Holiday Lodge," which premiered on CBS Sunday night as Jack Benny's summer replacement, has the Canadian comics playing fun-loving social directors at a plush lake resort.

The plot was that old mistaken-identity device—a convention of morticians pretending to be florists. When they arrive at Holiday Lodge, acting exactly like TV's idea of the heads of a crime syndicate, our heroes believe it is a convention of gangsters.

Well, you can imagine the fun and puns in that situation. Anyway, the laugh track accompany-

Businessmen Talk High, Spend Low

Caution the Word
With Consumers
Also, Facts Show

BY SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Businessmen are taking up optimism. But most of them appear to be acting with what they regard as all due caution.

Consumers in general seem to be following the same tack. They feel a lot better about the outlook for the economy and their own pocketbooks. But they are spending, and going into debt, at close to their old pace as set in more uncertain days.

New Statistics
That's how the latest flood of statistics seems to add up after reading the host of predictions—and most forecasts are optimistic. Retail sales have yet to respond to the new confidence most Americans are said to feel. Consumers are busier paying off old debts than taking on new installment credit.

Businessmen are ordering better than in the dark days of winter. But so far they are building up their inventories only slightly, apparently with a keen eye for actual sales as well as for prospects. Perhaps they are waiting now to see how much of a summer lull we'll have.

And in spite of all the talk about a sound recovery under way—and even talk of a possible new boom—industrialists haven't stepped up their plans for expansion of plant and equipment, trimmed when recession was the chief concern. Total spending this year still seems likely to trail 1960 by about 3 per cent.

But when you've said that—and added the somber view of international affairs that President Kennedy has expressed after his talks with Soviet Premier Khrushchev—you've about said the worst.

Steel Rises
Steel output, aided by auto makers' orders, has risen—although the rise is most likely to be interrupted by a summer slowdown in metal using industries.

The nation's total output of goods and services was under a $500-billion annual rate in the first three months of 1961. But the spring recovery is leading Washington pundits to forecast that the April-June figure may reach a $510 billion annual rate.

So far the optimism seems to have been turned into terms of cash largely in the manufacturing sector of the economy. Not only is industrial output up, but largely in the manufacturing sector of the economy. Manufacturing inventories were built up by $100 million in April. Wholesale and retail stocks were kept at the old level, on a wait-and-see basis apparently.

Much of this is natural when the economy turns from recession to recovery. Manufacturing had suffered the most, cut its stocks back

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved irregularly lower early this afternoon. Trading was very slow.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down .40 at 244.40 with industrials off .50, rails off .70 and utilities unchanged.

Losses of fractions to a point or more prevailed among key stocks but most declines were small. A number of issues posted small gains and a wide assortment of stocks was unchanged.

A drop of more than a point in Du Pont dragged at the industrial average.

Ford was off about a point while General Motors was steady and Chrysler advanced a fraction. American Motors traded about unchanged.

A decline of close to a point by U.S. Steel and fractional losses by Bethlehem and Jones & Laughlin gave the steel section a backward appearance.

Brother Hugo Marks His 60th Anniversary

Brother Hugo, who served in Appleton before going to Mt. Calvary in 1946, celebrated the 60th anniversary of his entry into the Capuchin order Sunday.

The little friar, who will be 90 on Sept. 22, immigrated to the U.S. from Germany when he was in his 20s. He joined the Capuchins in 1901, made simple vows in 1902 and solemn profession three years later.

He was a cook at friaries in New York City, Brooklyn, Milwaukee, Detroit, Wauwatosa and Appleton.

Many members of the order attended the special mass at Holy Cross Monastery Church and dinner after it Sunday. The Very Rev. George Henseler, OFM, Appleton, was among witnesses as Brother Hugo renewed his vows of poverty, chastity and obedience.

1,382,000 Births in First 4 Months of '61

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation continues to have a bumper crop of babies.

Mort were born during the first four months of 1961 than ever before during the comparable period, the Public Health Service estimated today.

The total reached an estimated 1,382,000 registered births during the four months. The old record was 1,362,000 in 1959 and last year there was a drop to 1,340,000.

The birth rate for the first four months this year was 23.1 per thousand population, up 2.2 per cent from the 1960 rate of 22.6.

There were an estimated 334,000 registered births during April, or 2.1 per cent more than the 327,000 in April 1960.

Declares Study Shows Need for Education Aid
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The president of the National Education Association, Clarice Kline of Waukesha, Wis., made public Sunday a study by the U.S. Census Bureau which she said "indicated better than any words the responsibility of the federal government to give financial support to education."
Miss Kline, here for the NEA annual convention, said the study predicted that between 1960 and 1970 the high school age group will increase by 43 per cent, the combined elementary-high school group by 24 per cent and the college age group by 57 per cent.
During the same period, the income-producing segment of the population, generally those between the ages of 22 and 64, will increase only 12 per cent.
"The burden on those who pay the local property tax is already high," Miss Kline told a news conference. "It will go even higher during this decade because the number of people paying it will increase only half as much as the number of children in elementary and secondary schools."
Miss Kline, a social studies teacher, said local funds, primarily from the property tax, now pay 56 per cent of the cost of public education, the state pays 40 per cent and the federal government four per cent.

Violence in South Hurts Image of U. S.

But Critics Who Live In Glass Houses Can't Toss Many Stones

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Time was when public opinion in America decried the "lynching" of Negroes and denounced those white mobsters who said, "The courts are too slow" and "We can't wait for the courts—he's guilty, anyhow."

In recent weeks dozens of "freedom riders" have been going to Alabama and Mississippi for the express purpose of conducting so-called "non-violent" demonstrations that have frequently produced violence. The cry of the demonstrators is: "We have waited long enough for the courts to act."

As a result of these regrettable activities, the U. S. Information Agency has just reported to the Education and Labor Committee of the House of Representatives at a hearing in New York that reaction to the violence in Alabama was so sharp abroad that it outweighed attempts by "well-informed journalists" to put the events into perspective.

Significant Comment

The information agency said that the "worldwide headlines and news stories presented a stark picture," but the "Voice of America" broadcasts "have resulted in a more perceptive reaction to the deplorable recent episodes than was true a few decades ago — say at the time when Little Rock was in the headlines."

Perhaps the most significant comment was transmitted to the hearing by Edward R. Murrow, head of the USIA, who declared:

"We cannot make good news out of bad practice."

It is "bad practice," of course, when the Republican administration sends in federal troops or the Democratic administration sends in federal marshals to do that which the states primarily are empowered to do by the Constitution—namely, to handle police cases inside a state. The moment the federal authorities assume the right arbitrarily to pass judgment on the efficiency of local government—something not authorized by the Constitution—it becomes a news story of worldwide importance. For, in effect, it's a confession that federal court procedures are considered too slow to satisfy the mob spirit. Racial disturbances have gone on for years in different parts of the country — including the north — but unless the president of the United States or the attorney general by sensational intervention gives these disturbances international news value, many of the incidents do not even make the front pages at home.

American Image

The U. S. Information Agency's latest report assesses the Alabama and Mississippi incidents "in terms of their impact on the American image abroad." But who and what makes the "American image?" How can any fair assessment be made by peoples in those countries which are themselves permitting riot tactics?

The Murrow report gives a summary of reactions in different areas of the world—Africa, the Far East, Western Europe and Latin America, as well as in the Soviet Union and Communist China. But in almost every territory mentioned it would appear that there are "people in glass houses throwing stones."

For in Africa scarcely a week passes without riots or disorders, many of them resulting in loss of life in the newly created states.

Who can serve as critic in France where over the weekend the premier had to resort to nationwide radio to stem the mounting anger of French peasants who, as one dispatch puts it, "are blocking roads and storming official buildings to call attention to the sorry state of French agriculture?"

Other Demonstrations

In Great Britain, there are demands in Parliament for a quota on Negro immigrants—a form of segregation.

In Latin America, demonstrations have occurred in the last few days against an official representative of the United States government — Adlai Stevenson, ambassador to the United Nations. He says the demonstrations against him were Communist-inspired.

Few countries today are immune from artificially contrived demonstrations which are deliberately initiated to stir up trouble, and perhaps these hurt a nation's "image" before the world.

It is, to be sure, hard to offset the effect abroad of dispatches that exaggerate troubles inside the United States, but it should not be as difficult as the U.S. Information Agency claims it is to give the true story of what the "freedom riders" did—with or without the encouragement of the Kennedy administration—to stir up friction and bad feeling that inevitably resulted in violence. The federal courts could have dealt with the problem of waiting-room "integration," and the Interstate Commerce Commission could long ago have given them the legal basis.

Former President Dwight Eisenhower admires a mahogany bust likeness of himself presented to him in his Gettysburg office by Frau Annie Hofken Hemple of Trier, West Germany. The bust was a present from the West German government for Eisenhower's contributions in the field of foreign affairs and German-American friendship.

Better Publicity

But the originators of the "freedom rides" thought they could get better publicity by demonstrations, presumably because they felt that "the courts are too slow." It is here at home that an information agency effort is needed, especially among those impassioned individuals who think the answer to every ill is an "executive order by the president," to be issued without waiting for the courts.

For just a few days ago the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., Negro leader who has been in the forefront of the so-called "non-violence" movement in the South, declared that he intends to demand of the president that he put an end, by executive order, to segregation throughout the United States. He says this is needed to prevent Negroes' bitterness from rising to "an explosive point." Apparently he doesn't want to wait for the "slow processes of the courts."

Your Money's Worth

Over-65 People to Double in 40 Years

BY SYLVIA PORTER

"If we could cure atherosclerosis, the ordinary lifespan, except for cancer, might be 120 to 130 years"—Dr. Herbert S. Robb, Wayne College of Medicine.

"The diagnostic advances of the past few months have indicated that the prevention of heart attacks is not beyond even... and, perhaps, imminent control"—Dr. Edward L. Goldsmith, New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

"The average life expectancy will leap from the present 70 years to 100 years in a couple of decades. People will be fit enough to work until they are 85 or 90"—Dr. Edward L. Boltz, past president of the American Medical Assn., as quoted by the Philadelphia Reserve Bank.

Longer Lives

"One quarter of all the human beings that have ever reached the age of 65 are alive now. In the next 40 years, the aged population will more than double in number"—Senator Pat. McNamara, chairman of the U. S. Senate Special Committee on Aging.

We are into a cycle of explosive growth in our over-65 population. Yet, even such spectacular forecasts as that of Senator McNamara will turn out gross underestimates if the medical breakthroughs hinted in the above quotations become reality (as they will).

We are living through a revolution in the power and status of our senior citizens. Yet, even among close students of our aging population, there is scant understanding of the meaning of what McNamara's committee calls this "new and quite different phenomenon in our history."

Ignore Older Customer

We are watching unfold by the day challenging changes in the working, income, retirement, social patterns of our senior citizens—changes of the most practical importance to all of us, and most notably to businessmen and politicians. Yet, as the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank said in a recent study, "Businessmen usually ignore the older consumer. Sue, merchants will take their money, but few manufacturers and retailers have made an effort to develop the over-65 market."

As for politicians, then lack of knowledge and conviction is underscored by the crazy-quilt record of government pension plans, medical programs, the like.

Disclose Few Facts

America's aging population is one of the great stories of our times — and one of the least probed. It is a tale which touches you at your heart no matter what your age, for it is a tale about you if you're over 65 and it will be about you if you're younger and lucky enough to live to become a senior citizen.

America's aging population is one of the great stories of our times — and one of the least probed. It is a tale which touches you at your heart no matter what your age, for it is a tale about you if you're over 65 and it will be about you if you're younger and lucky enough to live to become a senior citizen.

Before suggesting some of the implications of our aging population to businessmen and politicians, here are a few startling facts just disclosed in a new report of the Senate Special Committee on Aging.

Q. Precisely what has been the growth of our over-65 population?

A. Today one of every 11 Americans is 65 or older, compared with one of every 20 in 1900. Just in the past 10 years, the older population has soared nearly 35 per cent against a rise in the general population of only 19 per cent.

There are now 17 million Americans 65 or older, accounting for over 9 per cent of our entire population. The most phenomenal growth has been in the over-85 age group — up a fabulous 920 per cent since 1920 to a total of nearly one million.

Q. What is the ratio of older women to older men?

A. Dramatizing the extent to which American women outlive men is the fact that there are 121 women 65 or over for every 100 men. Putting it in reverse form, for every 100 women over 65, there are only 83 men, and for every 100 women over 85, there are only 64 men. Nearly one-half of the senior citizens are widowed, single or divorced but seven of every 10 older men are married while only one of every three women are.

Q. What about the political power of the over-65?

A. Today 15.4 per cent of the voting age population is 65 or older, almost double the 8.1 per cent in this group in 1920.

In numbers, in percentages, in status, in power over the marketplace and influence in politics, the senior citizen is skyrocketing in importance. In tomorrow's column, some implications to businessmen.
